

Calling The School Out.

Calling you out. Unfair.

The whole problem started with the cell-phone ban.

I've already ranted about it on Twitter about it so check that out if you want.

They hate me. They pick on me. The phone ban is their only way to make fun of us.

They're taking advantage of it.

They're unprofessional.

In every way.

I'm not like everyone at the school.

I'm not, like really, ask anyone, I'm not.

This will make sense later.

I brought my phone in for 2 days, the first day they allowed it.

It was just starting and they were giving us warnings.

I know I'm wrong with having it in the building or accessible to me but tons of schools don't care.

They have you put it in your lockers or keep a BIG watch on you.

I don't mind that honestly, why? Because I don't use it.

Again, not going on the whole rant but to add on, there's some stuff I do after school where I need my phone to make plans.

It gets tiring after leaving, going home, then coming back.

They won't even allow the lockers, cause they're lazy.

They're not responsible.

V. On-Site Storage

- Students must store personal internet-enabled devices in designated locations, such as lockers or secured device pouches.
- Students are responsible for the safekeeping of personal devices; the district is not liable for loss or damage.

This is proof from their policy that they SHOULD allow it.

They don't tell us this, they expect US to read it and I get it.

We should.

But in my school, no one CARES about the school news unless it has to do with going somewhere out of school.

So no one asks about the lockers.

They just started sneaking their phones in and on the second day, so did I.

Did they catch people?

Yeah, but not a lot, including me.

It all went well, no problem.

I missed the third day, got sick.

Then came Monday,

or from when I'm writing this 2 days ago.

They caught my phone behind the computer, they caught me and started yelling at me.

No figure, it's what staff does, keeping everything in check.

So when they started lecturing me, I started to fight back.

Physical? No.

Verbal? Yeah.

Cursing though? No.

When you fight with adults, don't curse, don't insult, that'll give them an advantage to put you down.

They're not smart, they don't know what I've been through, I've seen how adults act good and bad.

Don't TEST me.

I don't remember exactly how it went but pretty much, I told them that I had it the second day and no one caught me. Why? The machine didn't detect it, the teachers didn't see me.

Why? Because I DIDN'T use it.

I have it in there to make it easier.

This attendance lady also attacked me.

And not just me, my girlfriend too, Ella.

She kept trying to tell me something about how I just can't have it and saying it differently to make me seem dumb so I just kept repeating, "I'm not using it" over and over again until she stopped and left to talk to my girlfriend.

Security took our phones but they were being petty.

They also told them to not argue with me, I think one tried to punch me.

I THINK. I'm not sure.

They were holding him back and he had his hand coming for me.

I didn't move because again, they're trying to get me down.

I didn't.

I was standing there now, with no phone, backpack with me, seeing my girlfriend asked questions on why we kept showing up late since the beginning of school, and security being petty, as I said.

The security lady who caught us kept saying, "My machine never lies."

So I said, "If you're machine never lies, you would've caught other students and me with our phones the second day. Did you though?" No more they spoke, I can't tell because I shut them up or they just didn't want to answer. Knowing the adults, probably the second, since they don't want to get a bad rep. I know it's because I put them down. That was the end for me, for now. With my girlfriend.

The attendance lady kept asking my girlfriend why we kept showing up late to school and she was pressuring her to really tell her. It's kind of her thing, she's always nosey really. Like REALLY nosey, I don't give her the satisfaction. Until she said why, see my pinned TikTok on what she said to her. She called me over and eventually asked where I live to sum it up and told me to go to my class but sent me to guidance to fix my schedule cause they kept messing it up. Like always, never in order. Now, at the time, when I left, I didn't know this but she told my girlfriend to watch who she socializes with because it'll "give her a bad rep." From what my girlfriend said, she told me to go because she wanted to talk bad about me. This isn't the first problem I've had with that lady. In Freshman year, I defended my girlfriend from her and told me to go. She kicked me out this time because she didn't want me defending her. She knew I would. She ASSUMED I would. You'll see why I said that later, again. My girlfriend came with me to also do something but then after a while, she left and I stayed, I didn't want to leave. Then that's where the, "she wanted to talk shit about you" came from. And the "bad rep." Until 5th period I came back to my classes but I had several arguments with her before that.

The second time, or the big one, she asked what was wrong, as if we didn't just argue about something stupid. On both of our ends. I said "I really don't know, I ask myself the same thing and I just can't figure it out. I really can't. I wonder." She starts acting like she cares. And eventually I start telling her that if she has a problem with me, she can insult me in front of my face. She said she was always professional but I didn't believe it because she tried to fabricate the story.

So here's her thing.

She said the thing I said, my girlfriend only wanted me to "hear what I wanted to hear" and I never told her that my girlfriend said anything about what she said apart from insulting me so here's what she said, or what I remember.

-She "didn't know" we were boyfriend and girlfriend.

-She "didn't" insult me, she just said we all need to be equal.

-She never assumes anything.

It was all lies.

So I told her, that's funny because she said I was going to give my girlfriend a bad rep?

I'm sorry? But look at the school you're at.

What makes YOU think I'll give her a BAD REP?

MOST, like about 80-90% of the school are what TikTok people despise.

They're all what they call YN's. Wannabe's. They're the copy and paste people who think that shit is "cute," and "cool."

So please, tell me, compare me to them, do I look like I'm one of the people at my school?

DO YOU SEE HOW I LOOK?

Do you see how I TALK?

Do you see how I ACT?

Do you see how I WORK?

Do you see ANYTHING? No.

I'm only a kid. Mentally.

Physically, I'm growing old.

But I mean, I'm only a kid mentally.

I've had chances to drink and vape and do drugs, did I? No.

I had a chance to k/ll myself, I didn't.

I could've left my girlfriend to fail and suffer with her mental health, I didn't.

You're only seeing my lateness a BIG THING, I get it, I can miss a lot but last year, my teacher barely taught.

I failed, she explained it in a complicated way.

Most of her students failed from different classes.

That's why I didn't care, I showed up late or skipped.

But ask any other teacher, I put in the effort or tried to put A LOT of effort.

This year, I was doing well.

It's just the overwhelming pressure on this whole.. School.

The whole 7-12 grade.

Putting me in classes with people you know I'm uncomfortable with.
You said you would SEPARATE friend groups.
I see the same friend groups talk to each other back and forth.
I think I see what you mean, from what I'm getting, you're targeting the minorities.
You separated the "weird" people to adapt to those environments.
If you didn't mean it that way, why didn't you separate THOSE groups?
You guys don't know NOTHING about teens.
You guys don't know how to MANAGE your school.
I've seen students hide their phones in ways you don't imagine and just to really tick you off, I'm not telling you.
You've caught some ways like putting it in a bag of chips but there's other ways. You guys don't know.

They expect us to learn in a good environment.
I can't. Why? Because everyone isn't cooperative.
I can't go one year where no one laughs at me about a stupid thing.
I say I like art and I hear giggles like WHAT THE FUCK?
Doing stupid shit and laughing at me because I have a skill at something somewhat useful in life?
It's not just even that, it's just for ANY little thing.

Anyways, back to the thing.

I kept telling her small problems, I panicked so she tried to put me down but I used her own things against her.
She "doesn't" assume.
Well you told my girlfriend you ASSUMED we lived together.
Why? Do you think friends do that, especially for months?
You obviously ASSUMED A LOT.
You're a hypocrite.
She didn't know what to say but we argued about more stuff and then after telling me all that, she tries to get the Principal involved, backs off saying I was "getting violent" with my voice acting as if I was going to punch her.
I backed off, he looked away and she put her two hands and made a "T."
I was confused until she said she wanted to "tag out."
She left and didn't call security, no one.
During those fights no one came to get me.
I wasn't violent at all, I was standing up to myself the right way.
All of the staff who saw me have a problem with me now.

(This isn't related but she may be strict but also immature, a student also had a problem and I looked at her face and made a "Ugh" face, like she didn't want to help at all.)

The day went normal from there, telling my friends what happened.
Then my Tuesday, yesterday.
It wasn't big but I stepped in and the security guy, the one who I think tried to get close to me, asked if I had a phone and I ignored, asking again, I said "just wait."
Cause I didn't bring it.
They put it through their machine, I went through a metal detector and there's nothing.
Just for being petty, they're checking my bag.
It's surprising because I thought their machine never lies?
If it said no phone, there's no phone in my bag.
They emptied it all out and saw nothing.
But to just tease them I just said "wow, great job, we're checking bags now, this is really good, we should do this with other students. I love you guys, you guys are doing great, I think I've seen students get by with things they don't check, we should do that now, right? Right." and they just stood there, not a word.
They pinned a student for a phone here, they're taking rules seriously here now.
Why? Intel said the school's poor, in debt.
They need state money to continue the funding for the school.
So now they're trying to get people together but we're close to going against them. I've heard about protests and fights with security for phones at the end.

So that's my thing for now.
Oh yeah, and with the no phone things, I can't actually record anything now.
They accept cameras inside, like the ones I use to take photos but.. It'd be too obvious that I'm recording.
So I don't think I'll be able to.
The only thing is school cameras but they probably won't as they'll use the "student privacy" thing.
I could say there were no students but then they'd go, "teacher privacy."
Talking about bad rep, they have a bad rep.
Also the principal does TOO much, I get vaping is bad but bro.
You do NOT need to be the "hero" of the town.
IF you WERE, you'd FIX your school.
I don't see a difference, since last year or this year.
GREAT PRINCIPAL.

Talking about how students put a bad rep on school, bro I see kids and teens come and go, I have no idea where their school is.

Unless it's uniform, okay, simple.

But no uniform? NO ONE CARES.

In this town, NO ONE CARES.

You can't help just you.

Ever.

I'm out and will continue to document any future incidents.

9/10/25 - 6:02 AM

Forgot to mention, If I remember writing it earlier..

OTHER DISTRICTS DO NOT CARE ABOUT THE POLICY.

At least out of my town, why?

Cause I've heard, we're in debt and poor so we need to follow all of these rules to receive "state money."

They really are taking this strictly.

I don't even think it's just the normal rules, I think it's THEIR OWN RULES.

Again, with the attendance lady, she kept pressuring my girlfriend to tell her what the issue was and kept me away because she knew I would defend her, she knows she's vulnerable to pressure when it comes to saying something.

The state, the city does NOT know how it is over there.

It's not bad but it's also not good.

It's just not good at all.

The complaints about smoke, cursing, etc., they cannot keep their school in check.

At all.

They have threatened all students at an assembly yesterday that they will show up to their houses in the morning or evening.

This is harassment.

From an incident I heard, security pinned a student over a phone they didn't want to turn in, that's why earlier I said the guy might've wanted to hit me or something.

I don't think they gave them an alternative, just turn it in to them or like.. I don't know? Suffer the consequences?

Even so, NONE OF IT SAYS USE PHYSICAL FORCE.

Not lockers LIKE THE POLICY SAYS WE CAN.

THEY DON'T TELL US THIS BECAUSE THEY KNOW WE CAN'T HOLD OUR SHIT TOGETHER.

I can though, as I said, never used it this year AT ALL.

I feel I know why they're taking dress coding seriously, to make themselves seem more "strict" and "in control."

Give me shit about bad rep, ban the "YN" related shit then.

Wanna throw some kid's vape away? Out of THEIR school?

Wanna judge someone over some shoes that are basic?

WHY DON'T YOU WANT TO ACTUALLY TRY TO MAKE THE TOWN, SCHOOL MAYBE BETTER?

It's also gotten bad, they're not ready or make safe planning for anything because literally they lost the key to the phones they keep them in.

The staff almost got hit because of it, students were mad.

They also don't know how to do it in an "orderly fashion" like they always want it to be.

They just go in piles, they'll probably say it's "sooo nice" but it's a picture in the morning where we come in lines.
But I'm talking about after school, it's just piles all trying to rush to get their phone.
No one knows where to go, no one can hear.
If they don't care about getting them out, then you SHOULDN'T CARE ABOUT DRESS CODING A STUDENT LAST MINUTE OF SCHOOL.
IT'S YOUR FAULT YOU DIDN'T SEE WHAT SHOES THEY WERE WEARING.
YOU'RE THE IRRESPONSIBLE ONE.
They went the whole day wearing it, you know they didn't say anything because any staff or security would've said it.
But no, the principal comes and they say it.
Oh yeah, and the staff really behaves whenever the principal's around. They ignore some rules when not there but when he is, they're strict. They don't know what they're doing.
I think that's all.

-Kev S.

9/10/25 - 4:05 PM

What's funny is a new update!
Even though I haven't been in school..
I've heard a lot.
Well obviously, students are still the same.
There's literally no changing that.
But regarding my situation and phone ban, SECURITY DON'T CARE.
I've recently heard that literally students have had their phone out in front of them and they do NOT care.
Like they're supposed to NOT let them but why do they?
I literally assume that no one has any "good" reason to be able to keep it on them because most of everyone there gets offended once and wants to fight, so I'm pretty sure they all think independent which is a good thing-
But makes them have no reason as they can "take care of themselves."
They're just being picky.
I've also learned that no matter what I do, I won't really do anything because the staff are all ass.
It's a poor town, you think I'm gonna get good staff?
Maybe, but that's rare.
So they'll just be more mad at me if I keep annoying them, I won't make a change.
But I'll still talk to them, not saying what because if they see this, they can use SOME stuff against me which they won't because I won't talk about them.
But yeah, that's all.
Just being shitty and picky over there I guess.
Stupid.

9/13/2025 - 5:33 AM

It couldn't get any worse.

They GENUINELY ARE picking on me.

So, last time, ever since I stopped coming, they stopped checking my girlfriend's backpack.

That might be, we were thinking, because they hate me so much, they will try to find her to be terrible anytime she's around me.

So they stopped when I wasn't around.

We made a theory that if I showed up today, they'd check mine or both of our backpacks.

And they, again, for a phone.

But this time, because there was nothing else, they took my laptop.

I technically sort of was okay with it since the state does say anything personal so I was a bit pissed and didn't have the other laptop because no way in HELL would I use such a slow piece of shit. Anyways, I walked around for an entire period and they did NOT give a fuck.

I've seen the same security come over and over again, no questions, none of that.

Only two interactions are with one of them who was in the front, just popped in front of me while I was looking at my camera.

She never talked to me until I was distracted and even so kept walking around and they still didn't talk or anything.

Another one was with this rude security lady.

Security is usually known to be close to certain people.

I'm not one of them because I'm not like the people at my school.

So she just said "good morning" a bit quietly.

I was tired, by the way, so I couldn't really get it into my head.

Usually if people said "Good morning" and no one responded, you usually just ignore it and go.

But if you're close to them, then you repeat again.

Nicely.

She straight up just said "Good Morning" with some tone.

And then, made some sound with her mouth.

And I just responded with "Attitude, much?"

She continued to walk away.

It took a while after that, got my other schedule because they changed it again.

But then I complained about my laptop because why did OTHERS have them?

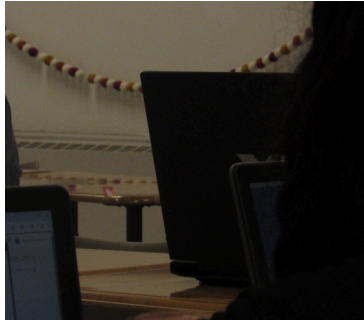

They tried to bribe, make a deal, or just sound smart because then they just said to tell the Principal that I saw others so I could have my computer back.

And I'm like, in my head, for what? Like a war?

If I tell on a student, I get it back, but what if they tell on me?

Would they get theirs back and mine away?

Are we fighting for privilege?
That's unfair.
I have proof of it by the way.

They tried to make it look like it was my responsibility and it's not.
It's theirs.

Because they have metal detectors, as I've said and been caught by them late, they were supposed to find the laptops and stuff.

They're being unfair with this rule.

How are students supposed to magically just bring their laptops in?
Shrink it? Put it on the ceiling or something?

You let those kids get away with it, you're choosing not to give me mine.

And honestly, you could ask any teacher from last year that I did NOT slack off on work.

I did SOMETIMES but the rest of the time, I always did my work.

All I've seen today is just people with those devices, they play games or watch things.

Later, I've seen someone use an iPad to watch something, not doing their work.

I'll make more complaints or updates later.

That goes against their policy.

That's all for today.

Peace out monkeys.

9/16/25 - 1:18 AM

So yesterday they took my laptop again.

Very rude staff, AGAIN.

I tried telling security DISTRICT POLICY says you can have personal devices under exceptions.

And they said, no.

I say SCHOOL POLICY just says no phone then they just go to, "Take it up with the principal, I don't know about the policy."

Which they should..

Policy for DISTRICT.

III. Exceptions for Educational and Essential Use

Student use of internet-enabled devices may be permitted:

Student use of personal internet-enabled devices may be permitted under the following circumstances:

1. For educational purposes, when authorized by a teacher or administrator.
2. For health-related needs, such as the use of diabetes monitoring apps or other essential medical tools.
3. During emergencies or safety drills where device access is necessary.
4. To support language access, including translation services for English language learners.
5. For caregiving responsibilities, as determined appropriate by a school counselor or psychologist.
6. When legally required, including accommodations documented in:
  - a. An Individualized Education Program (IEP)
  - b. A Section 504 Plan under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973

I used the first, for educational purposes, and teachers have seen me and they haven't said a thing.

Why? Because their job is to teach and mine is to do the work.

I was doing perfectly fine until this happened, and other events prior, and now I'm behind.

I tried to talk to the principal, the assistant principal came, mentioned the same thing and she was very rude about it.

Said they follow STATE POLICY.

Well, Ms. Brown.

If you're looking at this, YOU look at the STATE POLICY.

Yes. Devices may be used:

- For educational purposes, as directed by teachers and authorized by school leadership.
- By students with medical conditions that require the use of electronic devices to monitor them, such as glucose monitors for diabetes. In this case, parents should inform the school and provide any necessary documentation to ensure proper authorization and usage.
- For translation services, to assist students who need language support not currently provided by their school.
- If required by an Individualized Education Program (IEP) or 504 Plan for medical or educational purposes, and the school has not yet provided a device for such purpose.
- By student caregivers, on a case-by-case basis. A school psychologist, school social worker, or school counselor will review and determine if exceptions may be granted for a student caregiver who is routinely responsible for the care and wellbeing of a family member.
- In individual emergency situations, when the parent has notified school leadership of the specific nature of the emergency.
- Where otherwise required by the law. This includes situations where federal, state, or local laws mandate the use of such devices for specific purposes.

Where again, I use the first exception where teachers have allowed me to use it because I use it for educational purposes.

And you ignored that, you wanted me to feel as if I don't know your OWN policies, that YOU should follow.

Surprisingly, I, again, saw OTHERS with other devices who used it for their own things.

At the end of the day, devices that were taken this morning, NOT PHONES, other personal devices, were supposed to be kept until 4:00 PM.

Which no where on their policy says ANYTHING about it.

VIOLATIONS

VIOLATIONS:

THIS IS A PAGE WHERE I USE RIGHTS, LAWS, THAT ARE VIOLATED OR SHOULD PROTECT I, MYSELF, AS A STUDENT.
SCROLL DOWN FOR MORE.

DASA Act.

They violate my rights as a student.

For sure, the DASA Act under New York's law.

They have rules for the DASA Act.

The DASA Act should protect all students from discrimination based on, but NOT LIMITED TO, race, weight, national origin, ethnic group, religion, religious practices, mental or physical ability, sexual orientation, gender identity, or sex.

While also, "DASA defines harassment and bullying as the creation of a hostile environment by conduct or by threats, intimidation, or abuse, including cyberbullying. This includes threats, intimidation, and abuse that occurs verbally, non-verbally, or on any form of electronic communication."

My incidents have made me decline, hardly, through mental, physical, and education wise.

Which under that law, would create a hostile environment.

It also does say:

"This includes conduct of such a severe or pervasive nature that it has one or more of the following effects: Interferes with a student's educational performance, opportunities, or benefits

Affects the students mental, emotional, or physical well-being

Causes emotional harm that unreasonably and substantially interferes with a student's education

Causes, or could reasonably be expected to cause, a student to fear for their physical safety"

They have interacted with my educational performance, taking my laptop away, while yes, they give all of us school computers, I'd prefer my laptop and like any other adult, they would say to goof around.

No, I like to be mature and focused on my work.

Sure, I'd like to watch a movie but I don't because I shouldn't.

Again, ask any old staff member and they'll agree.

This year, everyone is confused. Staff should be "right."

Administrators should be "right."

Teachers should be "right."

But no one knows what to do.

Teachers usually say use school property but I've brought my laptop enough to prove I use it educationally unlike others who don't who I've seen today and the days prior.

Which is unfair, I use it for education purposes and the others don't.

This has also been affecting my mental health, I've started bringing up habits that I've stopped for a while when everything was smooth. They're harmful which is all I need to explain, I do not need to explain further.

Emotionally, I've always been picked on and trusted adults so seeing both parties go against me hurts even more.

Students just dislike me for being me, it makes it seem like being with me looks like a punishment.

I can't sit next to anyone without anyone laughing at me for:

1. What I like, what I do.
2. Sitting near people who have a certain type of style and I don't fit in.

Adults, I thought I could talk to them but staff don't even care anymore.

Security is picking on me.

Ignoring me when I'm asking for help.

It hurts, even outside of school.

I don't just have problems there, it's everywhere but I'm not getting into that.

Physically, I'm failing.

I haven't been able to sleep during the school week.

I've been up doing my stuff at night, work too but I never finish it because I'm tired.

I can't even look awake at school so I almost fall asleep or can't function properly.

Because I've dealt with mental health issues, my eating is now failing too.

I used to be able to eat more during the summer over a problem I had that ties in with my mental health but now again, I haven't been able to eat as I constantly feel nauseous, which for my mental health, means I'm nervous.

I'm always nervous to go to school which makes me hungry during the night as I can't be seen at night as I'll get in trouble for being awake.

Which means my schedule is to stay awake trying to do work, personal things, and sleep around 3-5 in the morning.

Wake up at 7-8 and get to school.

I struggle staying awake the whole day and then go home.

After that, I eat one meal and rather go outside to distract and keep me awake or go to sleep and wake up around 10PM-12AM.

Then restart.

Honestly, being there at the school makes me physically afraid, there's so many people there that if you piss them off once, it goes to a LOUD argument, even one small wrong thing and it's a whole fight.

I can't even be honest about anything IN school.

And if you think that's no big deal, there have been people in groups harassing after school or in school too.

So it's not just a one-time thing.

As well as the first incident I had where the security guard lifted his hand and stepped closer almost like he was going to punch me.

They held him back and he backed off.

I've also been just emotionally drained enough to even focus on school.

I try to make myself happy by interaction from the outside or internet world.

Nothing school related.

The work feels like too much even for a single question, it feels like I'm just sinking into failure in the most important year of high school.

Amendment Rights.

They might have violated my Fourteenth, Fourth, and First Amendment Rights.

I have valid reasons and arguments to support myself with this statement.

Including highlighting and quoting the Amendment Rights.

Fourteenth Amendment:

"Section 1

All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

Due process refers to fair treatment, including fair procedures when the government acts against me in any way.

This case would be the school.

My laptop should technically be confiscated with a clear reason being no personal devices with exceptions, district rules.

But also says:

"Exceptions for Educational and Essential Use

Student use of internet-enabled devices may be permitted:

Student use of personal internet-enabled devices may be permitted under the following circumstances:

1. For educational purposes, when authorized by a teacher or administrator
2. For health-related needs, such as the use of diabetes monitoring apps or other essential medical tools.
3. During emergencies or safety drills where device access is necessary.
4. To support language access, including translation services for English language learners.
5. For caregiving responsibilities, as determined appropriate by a school counselor or psychologist.
6. When legally required, including accommodations documented in:
  - a. An Individualized Education Program (IEP)
  - b. Section 504 Plan under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973"

My laptop goes for the Educational Purposes exception so it doesn't work.

Teachers have seen me use my laptop last year and the beginning of this year with no problems or complaints about it unless it's out without use of the class.

They even allow me to charge it but keep it closed when not necessary. I've tried explaining but they didn't hear me out, barely even said it. (Explained later.)

And the school policy, not the district, says no phones.

But doesn't say anything about personal devices.
They should technically be following the rules of the district but based on things I've seen, they're doing whatever they want.

With their "fair explanation," it's said I can't have a personal device but with evidence, others do, iPads, non-school laptops. So it's not really fair at all.

There was no clear explanation because one may fight with the metal detectors, why are they making a problem about it now?
Again, while others have it NOT for education purposes?
Schools should have procedures when taking it but they don't have evidence that I have been doing any wrong doings or violated anything which means they took my property without proper process.

They should've taken away the students who had their devices for other purposes unlike mine, for educational purposes.

My due rights and my rights to equal treatment may have been violated.

Fourth Amendment:

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

For the school to search my bookbag, they need a reasonable cause. One would be for the phone or anything suspicious that I may carry, pretty much something serious going against policy, rules, etc. I didn't have a phone, there was no need to. They have metal detectors to see if I have anything there, I didn't.

My laptop always shows there if it goes through, along with anything else, they've ignored it last year and the beginning of this year. I, again, use it for academic purposes meaning there were no grounds to search my bag, or seize my property.

Their cause was because it wasn't school-issued. Your district policy says exceptions, I used the first. And if it doesn't work, you let others have theirs with no exceptions, teachers complain. Your school says phone, I didn't have it.

There was no valid cause, my Fourth Amendment rights may have been violated.

First Amendment: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

My laptop was for academic work that gave me the ability to express myself, my own words.

They have restrictions on free speech, everywhere it does, as long as it's not disruptive.

And I know they'll use that against me but for what?

For telling them facts about how unfair today and the past weeks have been?

I've never lifted my hand to physically harm property or anyone on school grounds.

I've never raised my voice to make a scene for others to hear, the staff did to shut me down but I raised to be heard, not because I wanted to.

I never cursed at anyone, that's unprofessional knowing once I do, they'll have a reason to take me to admin but I know better.

Other than that, the laptop was used to complete academic work and taken without fair reason.

They impeded my right to use my laptop for education and expression, my First Amendment rights may have been violated.

In violation, possibly but likely, district rules (not following, ignoring my use of my personal property, state policy (tried to use that against me but it says the same thing, educational use and i did), constitutional rights (read up), DASA obligations (read up), and unequal discipline (allows some students to have their devices with no exception, no talking, and while mine with me trying to defend myself, i didn't get to have mine.)
