

Hey Julio, I recently came across your YouTube channel and was impressed by the immediate effects of the tips presented by Lisa in your video "How To Sound Better When You Sing". The vocal fry had a noticeable yet subtle improvement in both hers and my singing voice and I can see why your audience loves Lisa.

I ended up paying your website a visit and saw that you had a newsletter to connect with your audience on a personal level, nicely done on your part!

You are in touch with your audience, which is the first step to reaching the very top!

And I have a plan that could take you up the rest of the steps. With my wide range of skills in YouTube management, email sequencing and copywriting, I have come up with a generalized plan to elevate your business.

Based on my projections, you should not only be hitting a 6 figure YouTube subscriber count, but also have Singeo recognized as the de facto site to learn music within this year.

Something like the Netflix of singing.

We could end up inspiring a golden generation of musicians, most of whom will look back and credit Singeo for kickstarting their success.

Or at the very least, making people's lives more pleasant with their own singing, promoting self-love in a time that needs it the most.

As a token of appreciation for your effective videos, I am willing to make you a priority in my growing list of clients.

Keep in mind this generalized plan is based solely off

If this idea is in line with your goals for Singeo, do contact me and we can further discuss this, I will also throw in a free piece of work should you be curious enough to reply.

-Jon