For instance, one MegaMillions lottery ticket worth almost $300,000 was rarely asserted. In the distance, there's somebody with no thought that they won — and lost — a gigantic award. Try not to allow that to happen to you.

At the point when you purchase a lottery ticket, keep it some place where you can undoubtedly find it once more. Write down the attracting date and time your schedule on the off chance that you're apprehensive you could fail to remember it.

After the drawing, check the numbers against your ticket — then, at that point, twofold check them, just no doubt. Additionally, ensure that you're checking the numbers for the right date. That ought to be obvious, yet it's a simple mix-up to make.

Certain individuals like to have general store representatives confirm their tickets to be certain they don't commit an error while checking their numbers. This isn't really smart, since it's simple for a corrupt representative to stash your ticket and let you know it was a failure. All things considered, utilize a work station to decide whether you're a victor, ask the representative for the triumphant numbers and confirm them yourself, or check on the web or in papers to track down the triumphant numbers.
