

forestrain@derpymail.org

Her sunny feathers silky soft
Flit-flutter in the gentle breeze
While watering star daffodils
And lying under shady trees

Shy pony in the great outdoors
Among the birds and butterflies
Nurturing's her second nature
True kindness fills her azure eyes

Her simple love shines endlessly
Forged by light of sonic rainboom
Her warm gaze exuding power
Causing her friends' hearts to bloom

To pony-folk who hear its strian
Her heart's song whispers somberly
This anthem of her element
To soothe your sore soul tenderly

See in your eyes my own heart's wish
To know and feel a love undieing
See in your eyes the fear and pain
That makes the strongest stallion shake
Remember times I've wept for loss
The times my heart weighed down with grief
Though Windigos and whirlwinds howl
Brother, sister, I can't leave you
Can't leave the me I see in you.

Kissing bumps and mending scratches
Fetching worms for little
Training them to sing so sweetly
Harmony

Extolling the virtues of kindness