

A fair isn't complete without a petting zoo! Lots of baby animals have been brought in from far and wide for Reoseans and their companions to enjoy. Does your Reosean enjoy farm animals, or something more exotic? Perhaps they'd prefer to be anywhere else. Draw or write about your Reosean meeting one of the fair's animals. Animals must be 75% showing to count!

Busy as ever, the fairgrounds were buzzing with life and the excitement that the fair goers brought. However, as the fair began to get into the farm animal area the smell of the area became less than ideal, thus weeding out those without any interest in the animals the stench held within.

Even with the foul smell there were brave customers, eager to see the animals that were brought to be displayed for the world to see. Three of which began trotting up to the petting portion of the fair, all seemingly excited to get a hands on experience with all the cute critters.

The smallest of the group, a female named Bellona, seemed most excited. She was physically bouncing up and down as they waited for the farm hand to let them into the large pen, animals galore within just waiting to be loved on.

The other two, much larger males, though excited definitely did not match the energy Bellona was pumping out.

"Calm down a bit Bellona, you're gonna scare em off when we get in if you don't stop jumping around." The darker of the two spoke, Makroah, in a light tone.

"I'm sure she'll find an animal that matches her energy, Makroah." The second male, bellowed out with a hardy laugh. He just seemed happy to see his friend so excited.

The three all smiled wide as they were finally let into the pen with the animals. They seemed to have EVERYTHING in there. A unicorn, some goats, a cerberus, hyenas, it was clearly not an average petting zoo experience. As they entered a few small sheep surrounded the trio, all baaing happily as they expected some well deserved pets.

Bellona let out an audible gasp as they gathered around them, unable to contain herself any longer. She gently began petting one, then another, and another, until the whole herd seemed to ignore the boys entirely in favor of their new best friend.

Makroah and Cereos laughed lightly as Bellona was swallowed up by the sheep herd, all that could be heard was her excited squeaking, revealing her more than happy status. The two walked on, seeing as the sheep were too occupied to be pet by them. Soon enough a donkey strolled up to the two and let out a loud shriek. The two jumped a bit at the horrific noise but the donkey just seemed to stay standing, expecting the two to begin to pet it.

Makroah gently placed a paw on the donkey and began lightly stroking its fur. The donkey allowed its eyes to close and lightly leaned into Makroah, almost as though showing how content it was with the scratches it was receiving. Cereos smiled and began petting it as well, causing the poor thing to sway between leaning on one, then the other.

Bellona hollered from her sheep entombment, "I see you guys made a friend!" as she spoke the sheep seemed to swallow her back up as she laughed happily in their embrace.

Cereos and Makroah laughed at Bellona's display, she was something else that's for sure. They happily pet the donkey for a bit till enough time had gone by that even the sheep Bellona was petting seemed satisfied and began to walk off on their own. Bellona looked almost heartbroken by their departure, though she had been smothered by them for almost over an hour so she understood them needing their own time.

The trio regrouped, all looking satisfied by the petting zoo experience they had shared. It wasn't every day after all you could see so many exotic animals, let alone pet some awfully friendly ones. However, all good things must come to an end and as the sun began to lower in the sky they knew their time at the zoo was coming to an end.

"What a day guys." Cereos spoke happily, though his tone clearly expressed the exhaustion he felt.

"You can say that again, I love petting zoos!" Bellona spoke up much louder, though it was clear even she was beginning to become fatigued.

"Yeah that was really a special day." Makroah finished off, seemingly the most tired of the trio.

Another day done, and yet so many more to come in the reos world fair.
