

Nespresso Vertuoline vs Evoluo A Tale of 2 Rich Brewers 2021 Winner Is

Espresso can be the perfect drink to get you started in the morning. Its rich flavor and smooth texture include everything we love about a coffee packed into a demitasse.

But while we may love the taste of espresso and our favorite coffee drinks, we may not always want to be an in-house barista the first thing in the morning. Nespresso has come out with machines that can fill our need for espresso (and also regular coffee!), with just the touch of a button.

In this quick article, we will do an in depth review, analysis and comparison of Nespresso's brand and popular Vertuoline machines, discussing the pros and cons of each individual model to help you make the best decision for your lifestyle.

Want the quick summary? In our assessment of the Nespresso Vertuoline vs Evoluo we found both are similar espresso machines made by the Nespresso brand and fall under the Vertuo-line of coffee makers. While the Vertuo and Evoluo have many of the same features, there are some differences as well.

The Vertuo is smaller in size than the updated Evoluo and may be for the person who is space conscious. But the Evoluo comes with a bigger storage area for water and waste and has a bigger heating unit, ideal for the person looking for the best value.

The Brand: Is Nespresso Worth the Money?

The Nespresso brand is known for its delicious brews and user-friendly machines. As they began their flagship models in the European market, they put a greater amount of effort into the flavor and quality of their espresso drinks than other brands. While other name-brand pod machines simply make a highly concentrated coffee and call it espresso, Nespresso created a pod machine that is capable of creating pressure, without a pump, to create a much more richly flavored espresso drink.

The Nespresso brand also is conscientious about the coffee bean's process from the farm to the pod. Nespresso is much more concerned with quality than quantity, which is part of the reason it comes with a higher price tag. You get what you pay for right?

And while they may not have as wide of a pod selection as other pod brands (ie. Keurig), the pods that they do offer have a deliciously smooth flavor.

Nespresso also partners with other big name manufactures in the coffee genre such as DeLonghi and Breville. These partners share expertise and innovative ideas to continuously make improvements to their coffee machine models.

Is Nespresso Vertuo and VertuoLine the same thing?

There can be a bit of confusion around the "Vertuoline" name. Many use it as the name of a particular machine or as a brand name. So, we are here to help to set the record straight!

Vertuoline refers to a particular line of machines under the umbrella of the Nespresso brand. Nespresso has a Vertuoline and an Original line. While there is a machine that is called "Vertuo" it seems a bit redundant to call it a "Vertuoline Vertuo", so many shorten it to just "Vertuoline" or to "Vertuo". The Evoluo is another machine in the Vertuoline or Vertuo Line of machines.

Who the Vertuoline Machines are made for...

For those who enjoy drinking espresso, but don't enjoy worrying about time, temperature, grind size, or cleanup, the Vertuoline machines are worth looking into. Both the Evoluo and the Vertuo offer a smooth, flavorful shot of coffee with a simple touch of a button.

If you have housemates or colleagues that prefer a regular cup of coffee, they can get that too! These machines allow each person to choose the size and strength of their coffee on an individual basis. The Vertuoline machines can be a good mid-range choice for those who want a reliable and quick cup of coffee.

If you are a stickler for authentic crema, it may be worth your time and money to budget for an espresso machine. Nespresso's Vertuoline is a quality machine for those who appreciate a fast, reliable cup of coffee.
