

Crystal of (specific creature) Finding
by Ming

These translucent green-hued natural crystals are specially mined in Os for their magical properties. Two versions of the binding spell that activates the magic exist, known to only a few wizards.

The first version attunes it to a specific person. The person holds the crystal in hand while the final word of the spell (the 'key' word, usually written down for the purchaser) is spoken. Thereafter, anyone who possesses the crystal knows the direction and approximate distance to the individual it is attuned to. Wealthy families often spend a small fortune on these to foul would-be kidnappers.

The second version of the spell attunes the crystal to a specific race of humanoid or creature. A piece of that type of creature is needed for the spell, after which, whenever a creature of the specific race comes within 150' of the crystal, it begins to glow softly.

The crystal can be re-used if the appropriate spell is available.
