

Academic Standing and Academic Integrity Policy

School of Business Undergraduate Programs

Undergraduate business students must maintain good academic standing by demonstrating satisfactory grade requirements and progress toward their declared major while adhering to academic honesty requirements and being free of conduct violations.

Requirements for Good Academic Standing:

1. GPA - After a student has been admitted to the School of Business (SB), they must maintain a cumulative GPA of 2.50 at PSU and in all business courses taken at PSU. If the PSU GPA or the Business GPA falls below 2.50, the student will be placed on academic warning.

Academic Warning, Probation, & Disqualification - If a student's PSU or PSU SB GPA falls below 2.50, they will receive an email stating they have been placed on academic warning. To return to good academic standing for The School of Business, they must raise their PSU GPA and PSU business GPA back to at least 2.5. If they do not reach this level of GPA, but they earn a 2.75 GPA for the term (PSU and SB GPA combined), they will remain on academic warning. If neither of the GPA minimums are met, in their next term they will advance to SB academic probation. Once placed on academic probation, they must attain a 2.75 term GPA each term as they work toward raising their GPA above 2.5 to avoid academic disqualification. If they earn a 2.75 GPA for the term (PSU and SB GPA combined) but their overall PSU and SB GPAs remain below 2.5, they will remain on academic probation and not be disqualified. If their term GPA falls below 2.75 while on academic probation, they will be academically disqualified from earning a business degree.

Enrollment Minimum - Students below the 2.50 requirement must make satisfactory progress toward their declared major. Students who do not complete classes for one full year while on academic warning or probation will have their admission to the School of Business canceled and must reapply.

2. Academic Honesty - Students in the School of Business must adhere to PSU's Code of Student Conduct and demonstrate academic honesty to maintain good academic standing. Examples of academic misconduct include, but are not limited to:
 - a. cheating on an exam
 - b. copying the homework or exams of someone else
 - c. submitting work done by someone else (plagiarism and paraphrasing without citing sources)
 - d. papers submitted to multiple classes without instructor permission
 - e. misrepresented reasons for late submission of an assignment
 - f. impersonating an enrolled student
 - g. stealing, buying, sharing examinations, papers, or course materials
 - h. tampering with the University's grade records, or with another student's work
 - i. copying exam questions (online or in-person) and distributing them
 - j. Unauthorized sharing including but not limited to posting homework, papers, or exams online or providing homework, papers, or exams to other students
 - k. knowingly and intentionally assisting another student in any of the above

Students are expected to promote standards of integrity and honesty in all academic work. Students may be placed on disciplinary probation if found responsible for any form of academic misconduct, and sanctions will be imposed by the university and the School of Business. Students will be assigned a zero on the assignment pending investigation. The zero will remain if the student is found responsible. The School of Business has the right to review past assignments in other courses if a student is found responsible for an academic integrity violation.

Disciplinary Probation - In the School of Business, academic integrity is taken very seriously. As such, students suspected of violating the PSU Student Code of Conduct will be submitted to the School of Business Director of Undergraduate Programs for a joint investigation by the PSU Dean of Students Office and the School of Business. Students found responsible for violating the academic integrity clause of the Student Code of Conduct will be subject to sanctions through both the university and the School of Business.

University sanctioning can include disciplinary probation, suspension, or expulsion as well as a range of educational sanctions. The aim of sanctioning is to reinforce the School's high academic and ethical standards while being mindful of students' academic and career aspirations. The Undergraduate Business Program realizes that the circumstances of each case exist on a continuum of varying severity. Therefore, determinations are made based on the facts of a given case and consideration of any previous violations. The range of possible sanctions is listed below:
