Atkinson Hyperlegible Font

The Atkinson Hyperlegible font is named after Braille Institute founder, J. Robert Atkinson. What makes it different from traditional typography design is that it focuses on letterform distinction to increase character recognition, ultimately improving readability. It is available in Google Docs, Slides, Sheets, and apps for free! To add this font, in the toolbar, open the Font menu and click More fonts at the top. This will open a new window with hundreds of available fonts. Search for Atkinson Hyperlegible and click it to add. Then, choose OK.

Digital Declutter

My most popular class has always been the "Digital Declutter."

For many of us, it comes down to TIME. Unfortunately, I cannot give you the gift of time, but I can condense some decluttering tips into smaller bits to help you achieve a more organized digital life.

This is a 30-day declutter that will take less than 10 minutes per day.
