

Building The Inhabitants' Solidarity Agenda

4th Session Virtual World Assembly of Inhabitants

(WSF - 30/01/2021)

The pandemic has unveiled the structural crisis of neoliberalism and the possibility of alternative policies, but also the risk of restoration of the old normalcy that has failed.

The victims of the crisis are the popular classes and the impoverished countries, while the economic and social gulf within countries is deepening, redefining the geopolitical order between imperialist countries and countries subjected to new types of colonization, a powerful cause of conflict and push to migration. Housing and land issues are at the heart of the crisis, as a factor of transfer of wealth towards financialization, a cause of housing precarization and consumption of the environment.

Inhabitants organizations have demonstrated the ability to re-exist house by house, neighborhood by neighborhood, country by country, increasingly even on a global continental level :

- Countering violations of the right to health, housing and the attack on income.
- Lay the foundations for housing and land policies based on human rights, the environment and the redistribution of resources.
- The defense of human rights defenders is essential.

The time has come to consolidate these convergences by defining and implementing the
