Childhood Background: Commune child

Adulthood Background: Diplomatic Foreign Service Member

Early in his life Wybert was born to a commune stationed in the upper corner of Yukon, where he and he and his family fished day in and day out, earning their keep in the 'Mama Mia Moon Munchers.' The MMMM (pronounced mhm) was originally a commune of nomads, but after losing all their money to the Yakuza of Canada they settled down, opting for a reclusive life of living in RVs and shitting in the woods.

Life in the MMMM wasn't easy, as Wybert was the smallest of the Fabian brothers, and would have his fish stolen, as a 'little man tax' from his strongest brother, Dieudonné le Gros Cul. This brought Wybert a lot of guilt, and even pain, as his father would strike him upon realizing he wasn't bringing nearly as much fish as the other four.

Refusing to give up what he knew, he found his own fishing spot, where he would spend most days, and some nights. Here, he mastered the art of garum- a fish paste condiment, enjoyed in Rome. Through the garum trade, he would bring his family out of poverty, forgive Dieudonné, and poison his father, making him the Big Fish.

Life was good, as the garum trade allowed the Fabians to escape their frugal living. Their rich lifestyle brought upon unsavory clientele, one of them being the Queen of Whitehorse, a local greaser known for being the most muscled muscle around. The Queen of Whitehorse enticed the youngest of the Fabian brothers, Cramer, who would fall in love with her, upon seeing her viciously spear throw Wybert who attempted to court her with his 'second favorite rod.' Little did she know, this was all a ruse so that the Fabians could rise in the brutal hierarchy of Yukon, Canada.

Their relationship would be short-lived, as the Chief of MMMM would disapprove of the Fabian's plans, leading to a brutal shootout with the White Horses Whitehorse, and the expulsion of the last three remaining Fabian brothers.

Dieudonné would continue to grow his muscles, as he grew his faith in Christ. Ultimately, realizing how weak the Christian faith had become, and would eventually lead multiple attacks on the Muslim community of Quebec. The two brothers who haven't been spoken of, Aloïs and Harold, would both end up in Groups of Interest. As the two were inseparable, they would eventually run away after securing their lifestyle and safety with Dieudonné and Wybert. As both were mere masters with their hands, Harold would please a Serpent's Hand operative while Aloïs would sneak in, and steal from the pants laying defencelessly on the ground. From this luck, Harold would be indoctrinated into the Serpent's Hand for his skills. Although, Harold was sought after by the Global Occult Coalition, who after hearing his sob story, offered him a position so that he may one day stage a raid, and rescue his brother. Both know not of how to find the other brother, besides that they are now connected to the anomalous community.

A few months after being split from his family, Wybert lives most of his life day by day, working for an exploitative company who got him hooked on adderall. Wake up, go to work, go back home. Every day was the same for Wybert, all until he had one small time Chinese adderall saleswoman come by. Her name was Bai '白林' Lin. Seeing Wybert working with all his might, she knew she had to have him. With her vast collection of adderall, it was simple convincing Wybert's boss to have him be officially employed under her, of course she paid handsomely for this 'transfer.'

For almost a year Wybert lived with the Chinese drug lord, who made him straighten up and lose his addiction. After this, though he was still owned by Bai, he was productive and refined. Using her ties, Bai got her husband a job as a small-time diplomat, using his connections to further her own ring of influence.

Though, she would use him without his consent often, playing with him and oftenly injecting him with various drugs at a surprise. This habit of abuse would continue throughout the entire relationship, happening whenever Bai felt sadistic, or bored.

This was until he and Bai were at a social gathering of diplomats, and she finally stuck him full of an experimental hotshot. Within minutes, Wybert grew the courage to steal his freedom, by eating Bai. Sprinting out into the wilderness, tuxedo ripped off, Wybert roamed the woods, occasionally sneaking into a town to eat stray dogs. This is where Wyberts official story ends. A few months after the murder of Bai Lin, police authorities were still unable to find Wybert. As he lived on a commune his entire life, there were no official documents of his life before his diplomatic job. It was as if he disappeared. But eventually, there were reports of a Wendigo roaming the western parts of Canada, eating large mammals; dogs, Meese, or even bears. Upon seeing the mutilated bears, the Foundation wasn't about to risk a possible massacre, so they sent agents in to find the cause and contain it; but they weren't expecting Wybert Fabian, high off his ass. This is where his recognition as a diplomatic envoy came in, and the Foundation granted him a second chance at life, recruiting him into the Department of External Affairs because of his experience in diplomacy. After a few months of service in DEA he was transferred to internal affairs for his great investigation skills in his new position he would stop unethical acts day by day, eventually getting promoted to the rank of ambassador.

During his time as an ambassador Wybert got up to loads of other wacky shenanigans, he also took part in an operation with ISD known as "Vulpine" where he along with A-1 O-1 and 2 other ambassadors apprehended the Commander of E-11, curing his brainwashing, sadly he is still irish.

Aswell as these silly antics Wybert has been executing his job well as an ambassador, he has always looked up to the Ethics Committee, especially his previous director Charles Ze Whitmee, eventually Wybert decided that he wanted to progress further than ambassador and applied for Ethics Assistant, what happens next is up to the committee...
