Loyola High School Club Booklet

2026-27

LHS STUDENT ACTIVITIES

The philosophy of Loyola High School defines a synergistic, three-fold mission: spiritual, academic, and co-curricular. Although each aspect is irreducibly distinct from the others, it is also dependently united to the three-fold mission. Thus, each aspect strengthens the whole, while remaining viably separate. Ultimately, the philosophy guides Loyola High School to prepare young men in conscience and intellect, through wisdom and action, to become "men for others," who serve unselfishly in order that the universal goals of goodness, truth, and justice may be shared by the whole human family.

Loyola High School defines itself as a "Jesuit College Preparatory." It is this initial Jesuit emphasis that serves as the preeminent aspect of the school's philosophy. At the base of the three-fold mission is our spiritual foundation, rooted in the faith of the Risen Lord Jesus, which guides all to serve God and humans alike. Thus the Christian community of Loyola's students, parents, faculty, staff, and administrators gives witness to the Ignatian vision of spirituality that evolves into action. The spiritual mission awakens the conscience and guides the intellect for all to be of service to God and others.

Next in importance, but dependent on the whole for its integrity, is the academic mission of Loyola High School. As the spiritual mission defines what is just, good, and true, the academic mission develops the ability of the student to create action from such knowledge. An informed intellect enables the student to encounter the problems, choices, and challenges of the modern world. Thus, his ability to make decisions, foster changes, and define the limits that lead to the common good evolves from his spiritual awareness of the unique role for which he has been educated. Excellence of the mind in union with an awakened conscience enables the student to fulfill his potential as a "man for others."

The final aspect of the triad of the mission is the co-curricular. Through a variety of athletics and activities, the student learns to translate his personal visions, goals, and desires into action to benefit himself and others. Courage of self develops when the student's actions are visible and evaluative. Thus, his endeavors are viable, rooted in his conscience to become evident and nourished by his developed abilities. The "man for others" is the result of a three-fold mission of spiritual, academic, and co-curricular goals and objectives. Inspired by his awakened conscience, trained by his developed intellect, and armed by his courage of self, he is prepared to serve others with goodness, truth, and justice.

The goal at Loyola High School is the development of the whole person. Student Activities help to address this goal. Every Loyola student is encouraged to participate in a co-curricular activity requiring time and commitment on his part. Our goal is that students acquire knowledge about themselves through working with others and cooperating with students of different interests, backgrounds, and personalities toward the attainment of a common goal. This is an extremely valuable experience. Our hope is that there is something for everyone in the diverse activities program.

These clubs and activities are formed by students with particular interests and skills. To form a club students need to click the Club/Activity Application below, fill out the application, petition a faculty member to be the club moderator, and if the club or activity is approved, it is formed. We distinguish between Clubs and Activities in several ways. An activity is just that: a specific activity that might be seasonal (Food Drive, AIDS walk, etc.) and does not necessarily require officers, budgets, etc. Generally a club is a group of students with officers, bylaws or a constitution, and regular meetings. These students may pursue a yearlong agenda of activity, study, and action, etc. (Speech & Debate, Monogram Club, Math Club, etc.)

New Club Applications

All requests for new clubs must be submitted to the Director of Student Activities by 8:00 am on or before the due date. New club forms will only be accepted during Open Enrollment, which is the first 2 weeks of each semester. After submission of form, the Director of Student Activities will contact you regarding your status. In order to submit a new club application, click HERE.

Hannon Theatre Company

Moderators: Mrs. Guido Clifford & Mr. Kuhl
Web: hannontheatre.com

Hannon Theatre Company is Loyola's student theatre company, bringing together Loyola students and talented young women from across Los Angeles to create productions and theatrical experiences! There's a place for everyone in HTC: act, build, design, run lights and sound, stage manage and so much more! No matter what part of theatre or performance interests you, you can find your place here.

Audition for our Fall Play, HTCabaret, and/or Spring Musical. Cast members rehearse throughout the semester to prepare for their roles on stage. Prefer to work behind the scenes? Crew builds the sets, paints the scenery, runs lights and sound, works backstage, creates costumes and helps make the impossible happen. Stage Managers and student leaders take on real responsibility and help keep productions running. HTC is a place to develop leadership, build community, and create magic on and off stage!

Participating in HTC productions makes you eligible for the Loyola chapter of the International Thespian Society, the honor society for student theatre artists. Earn points through productions, crew, leadership, and other theatre experiences and work toward Thespian induction, Honors, and International Honors.

Hillel Club

Moderator: Ms. Martucci, Ms. Kashanchi
Club Video: Click HERE

Hillel is a group for but not limited to Jewish students on campus. Members share an interest in learning, discussing and celebrating Jewish culture, spirituality and history. In the development of our young men, it's important that they have a place to explore their spiritual side. Hillel provides a safe place for students to discuss their own spirituality and other issues facing Jewish people in America and abroad. Students are encouraged to ask questions and engage in conversations about anything pertaining to the Jewish faith. The moderator entertains incorporating a wide variety of outlets which provide context for students exploring Judaism. Redmond Skylaver is the club president.

Loyalist (Newspaper)

Moderator: Mr. Yim

The Loyalist, the official student newspaper of Loyola High School, is available in both print and online. The newspaper provides a monthly forum that serves the entire community of students, faculty, staff, and administrators, and all articles are written by student journalists. The staff is composed of student editors, who are involved in all phases of newspaper production, including writing and editing, photography and graphics, page design, and maintenance of the digital paper: theloyalist.org. Editors are also responsible for curating articles and taking them through the revision process with the student journalists. All students are welcome to be student journalists by attending an assignment meeting, which is when article topics are distributed, and submitting articles to the editors. These meetings typically take place before school or at lunch in L216 and will be announced to the student body a few days in advance. For current Loyalists articles, visit theloyalist.org.

Loyola Cycling Team – This club introduces students to the lifelong sport of Mountain Biking. Students with or without bikes, experienced or not, can join the club and start to learn about mountain biking in a way that encourages healthy lifestyles and an appreciation for the outdoors. Not only do current and past students of the Loyola Cycling Team learn to love the sport and continue to ride for fitness and competition after their high school years, but parents also become very involved as assistant coaches and volunteers for the team and the league we compete in.

When the racing season starts in February, all students that choose to, have the opportunity to compete with up to 100 other riders of their own ability, from about 70 local high schools, on mountain bike race courses that are tailored to high school students and their spectating families. There is an amazing positive vibe at the races unlike any school sport. For those not interested in competing, there are plenty of other ways to support our team. Check out www.socalyouthcycling.org to learn more about the league we race in.

Loyola Consulting Club

Moderator: Mrs. Dell'Amico

Loyola Surf Club

Moderators: Mrs. Utley, Mr. McClenahen
LA's proximity to Southern California's amazing beaches and surf breaks is a gift. The Loyola Surf Club rides waves year-round at locations and times - usually weekend mornings - chosen for the best conditions. The fall and winter months bring extra excitement as our more experienced members compete against other schools in five surf contests throughout Southern California.

Surfers of all levels and board types are welcome, including boogie boarders! Each individual can decide how much he can devote to the team based on his other commitments. Surfers who are in it to win contests join with that goal, while those who just want to learn or improve join the practices to get coaching tips in order to get better and can also enjoy the free-surf periods on contest days while cheering on the team. The surf team is not just a way to improve your surfing and general fitness, it is also a great way to hang out with your friends at the beach. See you in the water! For more information please contact Jason Toomire at jason.toomire@lhsla.org or Luke Hospodar at luke.hospodar@lhsla.org

Swing for All is a non-profit organization that collects and donates golf equipment to underserved youth and those needing equipment to play the sport of golf. We are partnered with the Southern California Golf Association Jr (SCGA Jr). Members will solicit donations of equipment from players and local country clubs, gain familiarity with website management, coordinate pick up and drop off of equipment, and volunteer with SCGA Jr. to mentor and volunteer at junior golf events around Southern California. All welcome to join - no golf experience required!

Terrarium Club

Moderator: Mr. Aristov

Top Chef Loyola celebrates the cultural value of communal meals as well as encouraging the independent life skill of cooking. At monthly meetings, we will have a food-tasting competition based on a pre-selected theme, open to students, faculty and staff. Students will serve as judges and commentators. In addition, Top Chef Loyola will discuss the foods of global cultures, share restaurant recommendations, and have top LA-area guest chefs as guest speakers. The club welcomes everyone, even those who think they have no cooking skills...all you need is a love of good food!

True Gentlemen's Club

TGC is a committed group of young guys striving to become the men God intends them to become: men of virtue (courage, justice, temperance, wisdom), men of integrity, men for God and men for others. Through prayer, discussion, reading, guest speakers and hands-on activities, the club provides an environment where its members can move from being boys to becoming men. Learning how to become a warrior for justice, a protector of the weak and oppressed, knowing how to fix a car or build a house, being able to survive a rattlesnake bite, or becoming a provider on whom others depend, are all skills that the club fosters and promotes.

Celebrating its 57th anniversary, Windowpanes is Loyola's award winning literary and art magazine that showcases the many creative expressions of our Loyola Cubs. Published once a year towards the end of spring semester and under the direction of Mr. Martino and Mr. McClenahen of the English Department and Ms. Muraczewski of the Fine and Performing Arts Department, the publication features original art, photography, music, poetry, non-fiction, and short fiction. Students interested in submitting will work throughout the year with elected student copy and layout editors and these editors will ultimately select which works will make publication from the robust submission pool. Each edition is designed collaboratively by student editors, so the publication also showcases our students' work as graphic designers.

PROFILE OF THE GRADUATE AT GRADUATION

At the time of graduation, the Loyola student will be:

Open to Growth

The graduate of Loyola High School of Los Angeles has accepted responsibility for personal growth – intellectual, spiritual, emotional, physical, and social – and has developed an appreciation for the diversity of his surrounding community as well as the world at large.

Intellectually Distinguished

A graduate of Loyola exhibits mastery of a four year college preparatory curriculum and goes beyond intellectual excellence to incorporate Gospel values in the light of Ignatian heritage.

Religious

A graduate of Loyola shows a basic knowledge of Scripture, doctrines, and practices of the Catholic Church while examining personal religious beliefs. The graduate explores and develops faith through further study, participation in a faith community, and prayer experience.

Loving

A graduate of Loyola has begun to establish his own identity and move beyond mere self-interest by forming deeper relationships with others, valuing personal friendships, and embracing his relationship to the greater community.

Committed to Justice

A graduate of Loyola is aware of many needs of the local and global communities and is beginning to use his time and talents to work toward the further development of a just society in light of Ignatian ideals. The graduate is preparing to take his place in the community as an accomplished, concerned, compassionate, and responsible “man for others.”

Developing as a Leader

A graduate of Loyola is aware of and practices the basic skills that facilitate leadership and collaboration. The graduate has had opportunities to exercise such leadership and collaboration in academics, co-curricular, and campus ministry.
