The exchange will serve to effectively promote tolerance and intercultural dialogue, affirm European ethical canons and a peaceful, open approach to the modern world, which often condemns minorities to ostracism and exclusion from communities. During the exchange, participants will promote democratic values by increasing the awareness of young people, local and international communities regarding tolerance. The activities we will undertake as part of the project will be focused on promoting tolerance through the production of short films in which young people will present their perspective on tolerance and this issue. During the exchange, for 8 days we will participate in workshops presented by young people. We will learn about the heritage of Polish, Czech and Hungarian cinema, the basics of a film director's workshop, we will learn how to write film scripts, how to work with actors, how to edit a film and how to effectively create an important message about tolerance through film production. An important point of reference for us are the disturbing phenomena that we see every day in Europe, which manifest themselves in intolerance, racism, xenophobia, aggression and violence directed against ethnic minorities. During the exchange, we will create workshops, local initiatives, organize a special happening and produce an original film that will be an amalgam of different points of view on the important issue of tolerance. The film will be created within various sensitivities, we will combine several points of view and tolerances. We will also create a happening dedicated to tolerance. Our project deeply supports the idea of active actions for tolerance and the fight against the growing nationalist initiatives in our part of the world, which gives us a chance to meet the direct needs of not only local but also European communities. The initiative built by us, the exchange participants, will allow for better development of the idea of pro-citizen attitudes in our small homelands.
