1	Morgran	Pien and Teun use the first opportunity for adventure and sneak off to the ruin of an old mages town. Teun is caught in a Wild Magic Zone when he pretends to do magic. He starts to fly. Any spell of 1 st level or higher used in the tower triggers a Wild Magic Surge.	A fight between Amir and Tahira ends in Tahira stamping off into a field of giant Sunflowers. She is chased back to the caravan by a disgruntled Ogre in dungarees that want's compensation for disturbing his 'front yard'. He's very stupid and will settle for anything offered with a bit of flair.	A field of colorful blue rocks lies near where the caravan camps for the night. Gwendolin goes to investigate the rock, asking Akreni to back her up. The blue circle of rocks is a fey crossing. An encounter with benign or malign fey might happen if the characters stay long enough or accidentally speak a codeword.	The caravan pauses near a meadow full of purple flowers, lavender, catmint, hydrangea, asters and verbena's. Butterflies of every color dance from flower to flower. If the characters helped the halfling children, Bertold asks them to babysit while he takes his wife for a stroll. Tyjit goes to collect flowers to make herself pretty for Morgran but is being secretive about it.	Leda is excited because the caravan passes the storyteller's tomb and even spends the night near it. It is said that if you enter the tomb and offer a story, the storytellers voice will tell you a tale of lore in return if you ask for it. The storyteller is friendly but invisible specter who enjoys speaking of legends of old.

1	Morgran	A hill giant blocks the caravan from passing. He's hungry and demands 2 kegs of ale, four sacks of grain and a horse to let the caravan pass through.	In the early morning Beyt sees a golden stag on a nearby hill. He offers 50g for the fur, hoping to sell it for a lot more at the next town (Golden Stag encounter)	Eldkin, perched on top of a wagon sees the remains of a Roc not too far from the road. A dragon killed it. Some parts of the enormous bird might be harvestable and sold or used for crafting.	At the end of the day the caravan rests near a giant tree full of black boils. An old woman appears and asks for payment for shelter near her tree. She is a green hag, wanting to make a bargain. The caravan members refuse. If offered no deal she turns invisible and dozens of stirges burst from the black boils, attacking the caravan. The hag leaves in the commotion.	At night the camp is attacked by Trollskin Warriors (Tribal Warriors), looking for live human meat to offer to their troll masters. They target the weaker caravan members and carry away one or two of the commoners if they are not stopped. Depending on your party's veils and lines this might even be one of the children.

7	Tahira	At the end of the day the caravan reaches the tiny hamlet of Mukkenberg that lives from farming and believes a benign spirit of the land has blessed them with bountiful harvest.	Later that day the caravan passes a mans head sticking out of the road, the word 'Oathbreaker' written on his forehead. (Payback encounter)
