

CLIENT: Day Trading Coach

CONTEXT: A curiosity email driving traffic to his latest YouTube video.

Subject Line: How to decode the inducement trap

Preview Text: The real reason your stops keep getting hunted

Hey %FIRSTNAME|UPPERFIRST%,

Has this happened to you?

You spot the perfect setup...

Maybe a clean order block or a fresh fair value gap...

You follow your rules. Wait patiently.

The price hits your entry... almost perfectly.

And then BAM.

It shoots just past your zone.

It takes out your stop loss by a few pips...

Then moves fast in the direction you predicted all along.

Frustrating, right?

Feels like the market is personally against you.

Most traders blame this on bad luck.

But here's the truth...

It's often designed to do exactly that.

It's a specific technique called...

INDUCEMENT.

It's when the market tempts traders into positions that seem obvious.

And then moves in the opposite direction before making its real move.

But why does the market do that?

To create liquidity for the big players.

That's why you must learn to spot these traps.

Because if you don't... you will always be one step behind...

Feeling like you're always chasing shadows.

The good news is that the market also gives you clues to spot them...

But only if you know how to read them.

Want to see how I decode these inducement traps... and use them to find high-probability trades?

In my latest YouTube video, I break down exactly how this works...

...and also reveal the CRITICAL shift you need.

So you can stop being the hunted...

And start seeing the market like a hunter.

>>> Click here to watch the video

Stop feeding the market. Start reading its intentions.

Talk soon,
Hunter