

When I get discouraged, when I see things going on—I have a favorite psalm. It's Psalm 37. It talks about, don't envy the wicked, don't envy the evil because...they're not here forever, they're here now and they're like grass that can fade away. So, it gives me hope and perspective that we on this Earth who think we're so high and mighty, we're just here for a little while, and we can plant seeds and change can come.
