

Noriker

Norikers have a broad head, set on a short thick neck. They have well-set shoulders, a deep chest, and well-sprung ribs. The hindquarters are well-rounded and muscular with a low set tail. They have strong legs with feathering at the pasterns and a big bushy mane.

Norikers are typically bay and chestnut, but dun, spotted, and pinto are also seen.

