Overview

Most history classes stick to names and dates—this one brings the past to life. Group settings often move too fast or too slow, making it hard to dive deeper or ask real questions. This personalized 1:1 history tutoring session creates space for curiosity, support, and enrichment.

Whether a learner is preparing for school tests, exploring topics like revolutions, historical mysteries, or resistance movements, or simply needs help making sense of the textbook—each session is tailored to meet them where they are. We explore history through primary sources and real stories they'll actually remember.

Topics Covered

- U.S. History, World History, and Social Studies support
- Enrichment topics: rebellions, inventions, unsolved events, and more
- Test prep, essay support, and historical research skills
- Learning through maps, primary sources, and first-person accounts
- Passion-driven study of any historical period or figure

Perfect For

- Learners who love history—or struggle with it in school
- Students prepping for exams or school-based assignments
- Homeschoolers needing flexible, high-quality support
- Curious thinkers who want to understand why history matters

Note: A brief intake form is requested before the first session to guide instruction. If not completed in advance, we'll use the first session to clarify goals and build a custom plan—no time wasted.
