Introduction (without subheading) contains background (why the problem needs to be researched), research novelty (at least 5 journal references are referred to as primary references), gap analysis, literature review (if necessary), and objectives (explain the research approach in answering the research question). The introduction ends with an emphasis on what will be discussed. This section uses palatino font with a size of 12 pt. In the introduction, the subheading uses one column and the contents of the introduction use two columns. And the distance between columns is 0.7 cm.

Method

Write the research method in this sub-heading. This section includes explaining the participants, research design, and procedures. List the research variables, population, sampling techniques (if using purposive sampling, list the criteria) (palatinolinotype 12 pt).

Results and Discussion

The result and discussion includes the meaning of the research by providing a comparison with the findings of other researchers. (palatino linotype 12 pt). In the discussion, it is not allowed to use numbers except for the year of citation or the name of the institution or place. The discussion is discussed per aspect.

Conclusions

In the conclusion, it is not allowed to state the conclusion directly, but an introduction is given at the beginning such as "Based on or as for....". The conclusion must answer the purpose of the research. It must provide an overview of innovation or improvement of existing science. Contains the researcher's suggestion for the next research or for the community (palatinolinotype 12pt, spacing 1.5).

References

It is recommended to use a reference application, such as Mendeley. Use IEEE. (palatinolinotype 12, single spacing, two columns). Make sure that only references are cited in the reference list. Make sure that all citations in the manuscript are listed in the references. The distance between columns in the reference list is 0.7 cm.
