Re: Do not close and consolidate 20 Seattle Public Schools

We are *All Together for Seattle Schools, a growing grassroots movement made up of Seattle Public Schools' families, community members, and educators who have come together to support our school district in this urgent moment.

We appreciate Seattle Public Schools (SPS) Superintendent Brent Jones for opening this important and necessary conversation about the district's financial challenges.

We write to oppose the proposal presented on May 8 that includes mass elementary and K-8 school closures to consolidate thousands of students into dozens more schools, among other sweeping changes.

We instead urge SPS leadership to work with students, parents/caregivers, educators, and school communities to develop a different set of alternatives that would allow us to identify the best path forward for SPS.

We oppose the proposal as presented on May 8 because it:

- Was developed without meaningful collaboration with SPS families, educators, labor partners, or the wider public
- Has sown confusion about what it means for individual students and school communities
- Fails to demonstrate how it will bring more resources to students
- Does not explain how it will solve SPS financial challenges
- Lacks crucial supporting analysis or data justifying mass school closures
- Risks educator jobs and may increase class sizes
- Can lead to further loss of trust in the system, prompting more families to leave
- Repeats the mistakes made in cities like Chicago, Philadelphia, San Antonio, and elsewhere that increased educational inequities, harmed student academic and social-emotional outcomes, and worsened district finances.

When we work together to solve problems, we can achieve our collective vision for a truly great public school system; one that is dedicated to achieving educational and racial equity by centering student needs and offering diverse options. In this spirit, we offer the following recommendations:

- 1. Work with the community to create and share alternative proposals

SPS should work with the community to develop and publish several fully detailed alternatives to solve the district's budget challenges and conduct stable long-term planning, just like other government entities do. This approach helps the community understand the tradeoffs involved between each alternative and helps build trust and buy-in on the final selected approach. We also suggest a clear public timeframe for providing feedback on these alternatives before a final decision is made.

2. Focus alternatives on addressing student needs and outcomes

Alternatives should focus on how they will impact student needs. Specific attention needs to be paid to how each alternative will affect marginalized students, including students who are BIPOC, LGBTQ+, unhoused, low-income, multilingual, immigrant and refugee, and those who receive special education services. Access to option schools and alternative learning programs that meet a diverse set of student needs and support families to remain in SPS should be maintained.

3. Show your work to the public

Provide detailed, meaningful data and analysis that justify each of the proposed alternatives. Each alternative should have a clear explanation of anticipated short-term and long-term costs, savings, drawbacks, and benefits—both financial and human.

- We need to understand the problem(s) that needs to be solved—whether it be better resource management, solving the budget deficit, better addressing student needs, or some combination of all. Spell out to the public the financial and student impact by solving the stated problem(s) through each alternative.
- Provide analysis of the impact to student transportation, academic achievement, childcare needs, and student social and emotional outcomes of each alternative proposal presented to the public.
- Demonstrate how you will improve equitable outcomes for students by providing an independent equity analysis of each alternative proposal.
- Demonstrate how you will maintain and grow enrollment. Complete the enrollment study prior to presenting your list of alternative options and share the results with the public.

We are proud champions of public education. We are ready to put in the hard work of helping solve the district's budget challenges and in identifying a sustainable, inclusive, equitable future for Seattle Public Schools. We look forward to working together in the development and analysis of a series of detailed alternatives so we can focus on what matters most: our students and their future.

Signed,

All Together for Seattle Schools

We support public education as foundational to democracy and to achieving racial equity within our society. We believe every child deserves a safe, nurturing, and enriching public school experience that allows each child to achieve their full potential.
