

Mike Buchheit Bio & Blurb - January 6, 2024 Presentation

Mike Buchheit (pronounced Boo Kite) is a Grand Canyon educator, landscape & wildlife photographer and instructor, conservationist, and author. In his thirty years as a Grand Canyon National Park year-round resident, the Iowa native was able to share his deep knowledge of the natural and cultural history of the park with thousands of visitors. He estimates that he has spent over ten thousand hours hiking, rafting, backpacking, and climbing in the World's Most Famous chasm, and is excited to provide the crowd with the next best thing to being there. Mike will be sharing dozens of his favorite images (and anecdotes) with the audience at Leisure World on January 6, as well as tips for making successful images with your own camera.
