| Vocational Scenario or Context | The Local TV Network (LTVN) represents the UK local TV channels that have been awarded Ofcom licenses, such as London Live. LTVN have decided to run a series of lighting workshops for media students who are interested in learning more about the role of lighting in photography and moving image products.

Successful applicants will learn how to safely set up lighting kits, experimenting with different techniques, and they will also be involved in setting up lighting equipment for different media products.

There are only limited places available on the workshop and as part of the application process, LTVN have asked you to produce a report on how lighting creates meaning in media production. |
|---|---|

| Task 1 | You must produce a report exploring how a range of media texts use lighting and the relationship between lighting and genre.

You must illustrate your report with detailed examples of how lighting creates meaning in media production.

You must include an evaluation of the following ways to use lighting techniques to create meaning in media products in your report:
- functional purposes of lighting, including lighting people to provide flattering images, lighting to illustrate elements of a background, practicals - onscreen sources of light from within the world of the product, providing contrast to other setups, highlighting products in advertising
- artistic purposes, including low-key lighting, use of shadow, the 'Rembrandt' effect, modelling of light, uplight, spotlighting |
|---|---|

	● lighting to establish a setting or time of day ● lighting to reflect natural conditions. You should also evaluate how the typical lighting setups that have become synonymous with the following genres create meaning across a range of media products: ● film noir, including low-key lighting, use of shadows to frame subjects, shadows from blinds to obscure faces, chiaroscuro lighting ● horror, including use of shadow, atmospheric effects, obscuring of detail to provoke imagination ● music video, including performance-based spotlighting, strobing, lighting to convey mood, lighting to create contrast.
Checklist of evidence required	A report in one of the following digital formats: ● an illustrated written report ● an interactive report with audio-visual content ● a blog.
