

Joel Rosenberg

President Emeritus, Joel Rosenberg proudly served as the first president of the Temple Beth Israel Preservation Society. He has lived in the Quiet Corner his entire life, with his wife Beverly, daughter Bailey, and son Connor. Joel's parents, David and Shirley Rosenberg, were among the original group of incorporators to form Temple Beth Israel. From childhood to adulthood, Joel has only known Temple Beth Israel to be the synagogue where he has celebrated, prayed, and gathered with friends and family.

Professionally, Joel served as the Chief Executive Officer of the non-profit organization AHM Youth and Family Services for 32 years and more recently as an advisor and fund development officer for that charity's board of directors. During his career, he served as president of the Connecticut Youth Services Association, as well as on a number of statewide commissions and boards through his work in the non-profit sector and on juvenile justice causes.

He plans to volunteer more time in the years ahead to TBIPS using his skills on capital projects and the TBIPS endowment fund.
