One upon a time, there was a vegetable patch, with a very big tree growing on it. The problem was that the vegetables in the patch and the tree hated each other. The vegetables didn't like the shadows of the trees because it left them only just enough light to live. The tree didn't like the vegetables because they drank nearly all the water before it could get to him, living him with just enough to survive.

Vegetables and trees began to get enough materials for their food and the owner of the patch stop watching the patch. After the owner stopping watering both the tree and vegetable really learned what it was to be thirsty. There seemed to be no solution.

But one of the vegetables, a small courgate, understood what was happening and decided to help. There was no water and it was very hot but the little courgette did all the could to grow, grow, grow....

He managed to grow so big that the owner started watering the patch again. All the other vegetable and big trees were so happy.

And so it was that the vegetables and the tree realized that it was better to help each other than to fight. They dicided to work together, using both the shade and water in the best combination to grow good.

(i)	Why were the vegetable angry with the tree? Because
(ii)	Why with the tree angry with the vegetable? Because
