

NUC (No Unclean Content) is a description and tag for content which follows the Biblical definition of pure. It is by no means a comprehensive list covering everything that is defined as bad, as to do that would be to have a filter that blocks all challenges and story telling of the fight against evil and hardship all together and is not that useful a filter when in a world where these things are real. What NUC is for is to make it easier to avoid the worst issues in media content. NUC content, is content which is free of all in category (A)

(A)

Swearing, Profanity, Gore, NSFW, Demonic topics, killing humans or equivalent (an animal personified, including implicitly, would be equivalent, while a robot would not be.)

In circumstances like in many video games the definition of what dying means is complicated due to respawning existing, so for the purpose of this document to die (and therefore what counts as killing) is based on what the media is focused on.

Things like; gore, a death message, animations implying death, or SFX implying death, are generally good indications that the character has died and often that it is the focus of that moment.

Signs that the character did not die or that it is not the focus include, seeing stars/birds or not having a player character that is involved (I.E. in TerraTech there are only vehicles and not people).

NUC also limits Items from category (B) to a very small amount by avoiding them.

(B)

Monsters, aliens, mermaids, fairies, idols, magic, magic tools, witchcraft, witchcraft tools, gods (non capital), other demons / evil spiritual beings, and spiritual phenomena that are not of God, etc.

Excessive violence (against something with a soul) without a good reason. (I.E. Hunting is acceptable, but for revenge would not be.)

Death of humans or equivalent as a whole.

There can be good reasons to include items from category B which are an exception to this rule for example, an allegory or teaching (I.E. the Bible), healing and deliverance training via the Holy Spirit, or destroying the items of category B. However, these should only be used with wisdom and understanding of the dangers associated and guidance by the Holy Spirit. As a rule of thumb, these things should be used only when beneficial to one's growth as a person and nothing more.

Content that does not have any of the items from category (B) banning them entirely is NUCIS content (No Unclean Content including Spiritually)

The invention of these Words NUC and NUCIS are to make clean family friendly content easier to find. I encourage everyone to use these words as tags to describe your content or in the description of your content
