A Talk About the Amazing Circus

By

Jewels Gilbert, Chloe Collins and Aubrey Walker

Last week we had the chance to interview Troy Wunderle about his career as a circus performer. Troy began when he was 20 years old. He has been performing for 30 years. Troy retired from the circus and started going to schools. He has worked with over 130,000 kids. He likes being a circus performer for a few reasons. One is because he can be creative. He is creative because he gets to wear bright clothes. Also he gets to write circus performances. He is athletic because he once walked on stilts for over four hours straight! These are some of the reasons why Troy joined the circus.

Do you wonder how many people are good as circus performers? Troy thinks that everybody could be a good performer even if they aren't perfect, as long as they have a huge heart. The best example Troy told us is about a high school boy named Bobby who was NOT a good juggler, but didn't give up. When all the balls rolled off the stage Bobby broke into a funny breakdance. Troy said he looked like a fish that got electrocuted. Everyone gave him a standing ovation. I think his advice is to do what you like even though you might not be good at it.

It was great having Troy here to help us learn new circus skills.
