

WARNING:

This document requires a Level 2 Security Clearance

If you have accessed this document and do not meet proper clearance or are not approved to review this document, please report to the nearest Security Checkpoint for Mandatory Amnesic Treatment. Failure to comply will result in Disciplinary Actions.

SCP-4250-ZP TRANSFER FILE

Signatory / Author: Dr. Kerry Hammond

Position: Senior Research Officer Site-[REDACTED]

Subject: SCP-4250-ZP TRANSFER

Recipients: NTF, NU-7, SITE-66 RESEARCH DEPT., SITE COMMAND

Credit to Dr. Bawb for the template I stole

THIS DOCUMENT AND ITS CONTENTS REQUIRE LEVEL 2 CLEARANCE. SHOULD YOU BE UNAUTHORIZED AND POSSESS THIS DOCUMENT, REPORT SO IMMEDIATELY TO SECURITY. CONTINUING ON WILL RESULT IN DISCIPLINARY ACTION.

SCP

Secure. Contain. Protect.

Clearance Level:
2

Name:

SCP #
4250-ZP

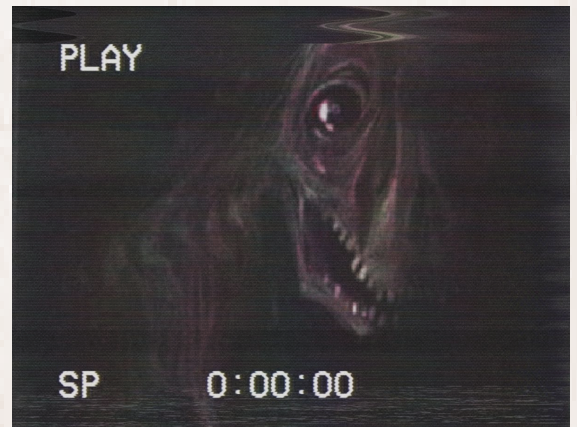

Subject:
Documentation

Object Class:
Keter

Date:
7/3/24

Description:

SCP-4250 is a non-humanoid entity discovered during an incident [REDACTED] in 1985. Adverse to light and stimuli, any things that emit, record, or absorb light, biological or mechanical will undergo a process known as 'lux fretus'. During this process, the entity will absorb the light and stimuli in its environment. This process has been demonstrated to be incredibly painful for the entity, causing it much distress. This distress and pain will cause the entity to become extremely violent to any light source or stimuli it can detect. Demonstrating a range of [REDACTED], before the entity seems either not bothered or unable to detect light or stimuli. During incident [REDACTED], it was observed that within a range of 15-25 feet, the 'lux fretus' process occurs in reaction to sound above 45 decibels.

During the 'lux fretus' process light and noise within a radius of [REDACTED] will be dampened to a point where it will be as if they are placed within a sensory deprivation chamber. However, its noise-dampening abilities have been recorded as being poorly suited for dampening human languages for an unknown reason.

Once the 'lux fretus' process has been conducted and absorbed a suitable amount of potential energy, the entity in excruciating pain will become anomalously strong and violent. Capable at its peak strength of tearing through solid concrete and ripping through solid metal doors. As the process is nearing its conclusions nearby sentient life within a [REDACTED] radius will become anxious and have a feeling of dread and fear with many feeling the need to run away should their minds not be trained to resist fear. This process is known as 'lux exitus' and can last from 5-30 minutes depending on the amount of stimuli and light absorbed.

Containment Procedures:

SCP-4250-ZP should be placed in a dark room with minimal to no lighting. Food consisting of raw meats from mammals commonly found in North American forests should be delivered by Class-D personnel. During this delivery, Class-D personnel should be gagged and blindfolded to prevent their eyes or talking from triggering the 'lux fretus' process. No cameras, lights, or auditory devices should be placed within the containment chamber of the entity.

Testing on SCP-4250-ZP should only occur within strict guidelines to prevent the 'lux fetus' process from occurring. While visual and auditory stimuli from human biological eyes have proven in the past to be capable of starting the process, it is uncommon for them to do so. This means with permission from Level 3 personnel or above and at least 3 NTF personnel on standby, testing is permitted. However, no machinery or mechanical forms of stimuli are permitted without the express permission of Level-4 personnel or above.

Re-containment Procedures:

If SCP-4250-ZP breaches containment, combative personnel should immediately respond. While during a 'lux exitus' event the entity has proven unable to be killed. It has been proven during incident [REDACTED] that if enough damage is done to the entity's body all its excess energy will be spent repairing its body and the entity will faint and be able to be easily recontained from there.

After an L-EX event, any combative personnel who experience systems of anxiety or consistent paranoia or fear should receive a medical evaluation. If necessary Class-A amenities are permitted to erase the memory of the event. This has proven effective in reversing physiological damage done by the entity during its breaches.

Addendum - 1

The creature is very difficult to visually see during an L-EX event. As it will darken the entire area around it. Night-vision goggles have proven in the past capable of making the entity easier to see during these events however extreme caution should be applied as the entity is incredibly fast and dangerous during these horrific but very rare events.

TRANSFER DOCUMENT

TRANSPORTATION:

SCP-4250-ZP will be transported by Semi-Truck in an enclosed box made of steel. This box will be covered in a special light / noise-absorbing material developed by Site-[REDACTED] research personnel after the incident [REDACTED]. The truck to avoid stimuli and light shall move along backroads escorted by 4 vans filled with men from foundation security personnel. A squadron of men from MTF-Gamma 4 'Green Stags' shall accompany the convoy following 2.5 miles behind the main convoy to avoid suspicion.

To maintain secrecy SCP-4250-ZP will be referred to for the duration of the journey as 'BLACK BEAR' over radio communications to prevent tracking or information breaching.

BREACH PROTOCOL:

If SCP-4250-ZP breaches containment foundation security personnel should call out over the radio 'WILD ANIMAL' over foundation emergency communications, before engaging the entity with gunfire. MTF-Gamma 4 upon reaching the scene will declare 'ANIMAL ATTACK' if the entire convoy is wiped out and the entity is missing. If the entity has been contained, brought down, or the situation has been resolved in a way that means it is safe for personnel to recover SCP-4250-ZP. Should 'ANIMAL ATTACK' be declared all nearby MTF units should respond to the scene if possible to assist Gamma 4 in containing the entity.

All arriving security personnel should follow the direction of Gamma 4, even if they outrank them. Gamma 4 specializes in tracking wildlife-based anomalies. To contain the entity, all its excess energy must be spent. Should the foundation fail to cause this through force the entity will cause it through violently attacking nearby settlements or animals to end the painful experience it is undergoing.

NOTES:

WIP