

Why Read Aloud?

- Reading aloud helps children with the ability to concentrate for long periods of time. Modern media conditions children to have short attention spans.
- Research shows that children who are read to through the adolescence years do significantly better in vocabulary and comprehension.
- A child's reading level typically doesn't catch up to his listening level until eighth grade.
- Creates family bonds and memories.