Creative Ways

Written By: Violet Cullen, PotterMonster Columnist

This issue of Creative Ways, We are going to dive into the creativity of sleeping habits. I have been tired and busy this week, so sleep is what I need. Listening to music. People will listen to soft music to go to sleep and fall asleep faster. My personal opinion is that I listen to music that could make me cry or is an old memory of something special to me.

Sleep podcast or stories. There are great apps for listening to stories or sounds that can help people fall asleep faster. One app I recommend is Headspace, it helps meditate and do other things to keep you active besides trying to sleep.

Putting your phone away. Scientists have proven to show that people don't get enough sleep because of the blue light that is in them. It affects kids more because of all the energy and sleep that they truly need in one day.

I hope this can help you fall asleep faster or just when you are tired. So I hope you enjoyed this issue of Creative Ways. You know the drill, have fun, yawn, and stay creative. Good Night Folks, yawn, time for bed(for me).

Geocaching 101

Written By: Joy Athenaeum

Edited By: Sami Harper

Have you ever wanted to go on a real life treasure hunt? Ever wanted a reason to get out of the house that's COVID safe? Ever want some free, healthy entertainment? Ever miss playing hide and seek? Ever heard of Geocaching?

The word Geocaching comes from geo, meaning earth, and cache, meaning treasure, which does give a pretty good idea of what it is. Geocaching is a game, a sort of hide and seek or a treasure hunt, with thousands of players all around the world. A geocache is usually a container of sorts. They can be large, like a locker, or smaller than your thumbnail! Their GPS coordinates are posted on a site like geocaching.com, along with the general size, difficulty, and warnings or info on local terrain. It's the job of players to go out and find them. Inside is a log where you can sign your name or a geocaching username, and often small coupons, stickers, toys, or other trinkets. You can sign the log and take a few items, so long as you replace them with something of approximately equal value. Be sure to log your find online and say thanks to the person who hid and maintains the cache if you're using an app or website. Then, you put it back as you found it for the next person!

There are geocaches in all sorts of public spaces, from shopping centers, along sidewalks or bike paths, behind or in trees, or even cleverly disguised as a bolt on the back of a street sign! The geocaching community has plenty of words and acronyms they use, and one is actually a clever Harry Potter reference! To those who don't know about geocaching, hunting for a treasure can look a little suspicious, so some caches will have warnings like "look out for the muggles," or "high muggle traffic," muggles referring to non-geocachers. It's a clever little reference I think everyone reading can appreciate.

There are geocaches absolutely everywhere, even in Antarctica, so hop on a bike, in a car, or just lace up your running shoes, boot up a GPS or a handy app like the one made by Geocaching.com, and get hunting!

Positive Mindfulness

Lois Granger, PotterMonster Columnist

"Mindfulness is a new way of being, a new way of experiencing life and improving one's work-life balance"

- The Little Book of Mindfulness.

Mindfulness is the easy way to let go of stress and anxiety so you can simply be in the moment. Over the years, it has become more and more popular, with better and better results. Here are some short ways to keep mindful, including meditation!

An amazing way to calm yourself down, and feel more connected with the outside world is to observe. Live a little longer. Instead of being lost in your thoughts, or completely distracted from your thoughts, take time to observe the things around you. Think about them for a moment, appreciate them. You will begin to acknowledge things for the first time, but you have seen them everyday!

Breathe. This may sound dumb, because as humans this is what we do without even paying attention to doing it. Now, that's the catch. Start paying attention. Acknowledge your breathing patterns, take slower and deeper breaths. Relax your body, getting rid of any tensions. With every breath you take, make it longer, feel your body relaxing with every deep breath. Close your eyes, and just focus on your breathing. Be with the breath.

Mindfully walking. This is a great way to relieve stress, and to help you feel grounded and stable. A common method for this is the 10 step method. This method involves standing up, relaxing your body, then slowly taking ten steps. With each step, focus on the lift of the leg, the foot, then observe the shift of weight to the opposite leg. Keeping a slow, steady pace. Possibly even imagining footprints beneath the soles of your feet as you mindfully walk. Doing this for 10 minutes when you're feeling stressed really does help! Include your observing skills, and find the perfect breathing pattern.

This is the final article for 'Positive Mindfulness', but I will be writing a different column for future issues of the PotterMonster Magazine!
