Reflection

a. Preparation

I was trying to find items which I could get in one store. I decided that the basic baking materials would be supplied by the host. I then would buy everything else from walmart. I calculated the rough total so I had an idea about the price. I think I could have decided with the TCCC members on what materials they would like to have, instead of deciding on my own.

b. At the event

There were many people, which I was happy about. However, when more people started coming, it got more and more chaotic and many people strayed from the idea of making chocolate, with only a few people actually doing the main task. However, 马老师 helped us get back on track, and we made quite a few chocolates. The atmosphere was quite cheerful and many of the members made small talk.

c. After

It was quite a successful event, as we got many people to attend and it was a great event for Valentine's Day. After this, we even got a few members to join TCCC.
