† From Condemnation to Celebration: Dan Mohler's Guide to Living Blameless - Dan Mohler

Through faith in Jesus Christ and a deep understanding of God's love and forgiveness, believers can live a blameless life, empowered by the Spirit and transformed to shine for God's glory.

- 00:00 Dan Mohler shares that through faith in the gospel, believers can live blameless, empowered by God's love and forgiveness, and transformed by Christ to shine and live by the Spirit.
 - Dan Mohler shares a heartfelt and casual introduction, expressing his appreciation for the audience's faith and love, and briefly recounts his recent experience preaching at his home church on Easter Sunday.
 - To live blameless, one must believe and activate their faith in the gospel, understanding that through Christ's crucifixion and forgiveness, they are loved, forgiven, and righteous in God's sight, and not be held back by guilt, shame, and condemnation.
 - When we believe we are right in God's sight, it empowers us to live a life of holiness not by trying to work at it, but by faith and grace, freeing us from self-consciousness and the fear of man.
 - Christians are not meant to use God to survive or get through life's challenges, but to be transformed by Him to shine and live by the Spirit, knowing they are His friends, not servants.
 - The gospel of Jesus Christ sets believers up to become like Him, not to fail, and living in the truth of His love and empowerment enables Christians to grow, mature, and experience great joy despite life's pressures.
 - In Christ, believers find their true identity, value, destiny, and purpose, which should bring joy unspeakable, but often societal and religious expectations mistakenly view excessive joy with skepticism, implying something is wrong.
- 16:09 The devil's strategy to hinder God's kingdom is thwarted when believers discover their true identity in Christ, living blamelessly through surrender, faith, and understanding God's love and grace.
 - The devil's strategy is to prevent believers from discovering their true identity in Christ, not to personally attack them, in order to stop the kingdom of God from advancing.

- God cares more about living like Christ in every moment than external religious actions, and through surrender and faith, He can make us clean as if we've never sinned, changing our lives by changing our thinking.
- Many Christians live in insecurity and uncertainty about their standing with God, interpreting life's challenges as punishment, but true freedom comes from understanding and receiving God's love and grace.
- Many Christians struggle to live blamelessly because they fail to accept God's love and finished work in Christ, instead continually seeking deliverance and focusing on their own flaws rather than thanking God for loving and cleansing them.
- To live blamelessly, one must renew their mind by believing they are worth the blood of Jesus, rather than dwelling on their sin and unworthiness.
- Finding identity in knowledge of Christ doesn't make one attractive, but rather offering hope, encouragement, and lifegiving correction does.
- 31:07 Dan Mohler shares his personal testimony and guides viewers on living a blameless life by settling on God's truth, letting their changed life speak for itself, and living for God's glory.
 - To live blamelessly, one must settle on what they believe through the word of God and Jesus's life, and hold on to that truth despite life's challenges.
 - Dan Mohler shares his experience of being transformed after getting saved, deciding to live a life changed by God without immediately evangelizing to others, and instead letting his changed life speak for itself.
 - Dan shares their personal testimony of a life-changing encounter with God, resulting in unshakeable peace, and encourages others to find stability in scripture rather than personal experiences.
 - Dan Mohler emphasizes that true Christianity is not about personal gain or theology, but about living for God's glory, and that persecution or disagreements over theology cannot touch a genuine relationship with Him.
 - Living for God's glory involves letting Him guide your attitudes, responses, and actions, and cultivating a relationship with Him through quiet, intentional time, such as waking up 15 minutes earlier to be with Him.
 - The purpose of God's grace in a believer's life is to manifest His nature and character, not to achieve a life of ease or comfort, but to make God seen, known, and realized through them.
- 43:05 Dan Mohler discusses living blameless through faith in Jesus, finding identity in Him, and experiencing growth through trials, rather than seeking personal gain or using God for benefits.

- The purpose of gathering in church is not to find identity through service or attendance, but to celebrate and stir up love and good works after living out one's identity in Christ throughout the week.
- Through faith in Jesus, believers have peace with God, access to His grace, and can even glory in tribulations, which serve to reveal their genuine commitment to Christ.
- When life squeezes a Christian, revealing their true roots and motivations, it exposes if they're genuinely surrendered to Christ or seeking other benefits.
- People often turn against God due to unmet expectations, but true Christianity is not about using God for personal gain or trying Him out, but rather about intimacy and relationship with Him.
- When faced with adversity and lies from the devil, believers can experience growth and reveal God's power by submitting to Him, resisting the devil, and drawing on truth, rather than trying to feel different or stop the voices.
- Dan expresses a deep, personal love and appreciation for the Holy Spirit, referring to it as their best friend and acknowledging its role in revealing Christ and guiding their life.
- 58:01 Dan Mohler guides viewers to live blameless by focusing on God's truth, forgiveness, and freedom, rather than condemnation and imperfection, to experience healing and a selfless life empowered by faith.
 - To overcome condemnation and live blameless, focus on being answer-conscious, wrapping God's truth around negative thoughts and emotions, and celebrating His freedom, rather than being problem-driven and prayer-focused on issues that are actually truth issues.
 - Dan Mohler wraps up his talk and announces that he will pray for the sick, doing an activation exercise, seemingly running longer than expected but enjoying the extra time.
 - Dan argues that forgiveness of sins and healing are directly linked, and that living a selfless life, empowered by faith and understanding of God's mercy, can lead to a life of blamelessness and purity, contrary to the common mindset of accepting imperfection and sin as inevitable.
 - Dan Mohler emphasizes that believers can live free from sin and its effects, including healing, by embracing the truth that they have died to sin and been made righteous through Christ, allowing His grace to change their experience.
 - When faced with trials, believers should focus on their identity in Christ, understanding that God loves them and has forgiven their sins, rather than taking on a condemning identity and missing out on the faith that works through love.

- Dan Mohler emphasizes that believers have the power to pray for the sick and experience God's manifestations through faith, not just through gifted or anointed individuals.
- 01:21:13 Dan Mohler shares his guide to living blameless, emphasizing the importance of living in faith, integrity, and simplicity to experience spiritual growth, healing, and miracles.
 - The goal of ministry is not just to meet people's immediate needs or showcase individual gifting, but to train and equip people to live in Christ, function in their own spiritual offices, and release faith to activate the kingdom, even if it means taking risks and facing uncertainty.
 - Living a life of faith and integrity, where one's character and attitude align with their beliefs, is essential to experiencing spiritual growth, healing, and miracles.
 - Dan shares their personal experience of operating in spiritual gifts, particularly healing, not through a special anointing or title, but through a simple relationship with God and walking in love.
 - Dan Mohler shares his approach to prayer and healing, emphasizing the importance of living in faith and manifesting Christ, rather than just talking about theological beliefs.
 - When praying for the sick, have the same faith and simplicity in believing God's finished work, regardless of symptoms, and pray short, straightforward phrases like "Be whole in Jesus' name" rather than trying to pray eloquently or with authority.
 - Participate immediately without waiting.
- 01:35:37 Dan Mohler leads a prayer session and encourages people to receive healing by standing in faith, being honest about their conditions, and maintaining faith despite past disappointments.
 - Dan Mohler emphasizes that God wants to heal people and encourages those with underlying sicknesses or issues to stand up and believe in God's love, demonstrated through Jesus' crucifixion, to receive healing.
 - Dan instructs the audience to ensure everyone has physical contact with someone else in the room as a show of unity and support before praying together.
 - Dan Mohler leads a prayer session and then prepares to minister to two groups of people, first those who are already whole, and then those with physical symptoms and conditions, asking the latter to stand unless they are unable to do so.
 - When experiencing physical symptoms, instead of being afraid of nothing happening, maintain faith and don't let past disappointments dictate your belief system, and be honest about your condition to receive prayer and potentially see healing.

- Dan Mohler instructs people with verifiable physical symptoms to stand up and test their bodies for healing, citing examples of arthritis sufferers who get up and experience change.
- The Lord wants people to already be up and receiving prayer, not waiting for their specific issue to be called out.
- 01:48:20 Dan Mohler guides audience through prayer exercises, healing sessions, and emphasizes living by faith in Jesus' name, shifting focus to communing with God for a blameless life.
 - Dan Mohler guides the audience through a prayer exercise where people stand up for prayer, find a partner to pray with, and share briefly why they stood up to believe for healing.
 - Jesus emphasizes the power of faith, stating that even small faith can move mountains and that believers can perform healings and miracles through him, not by asking God but by speaking directly to the problem in Jesus' name.
 - Dan leads a prayer and healing session, guiding participants to check their bodies for healing, share testimonies, and celebrate the healings that occur.
 - Dan Mohler leads a healing service where people share testimonies of physical healings, such as pain relief and restored mobility, after receiving prayer and believing for one another.
 - Faith is a position of the heart, not a point in time, and involves speaking to challenges in Jesus' name, believing in His love and finished work, and persistently checking one's body for change.
 - Dan Mohler emphasizes the importance of communing with God and shifting one's focus from negative voices or experiences to a conversation with God, yielding to Him, and living in a place of humility and awareness of His presence.

Identity and Righteousness

 Q: How does believing you are righteous in God's sight change your ability to live differently? A: Presenting your members under righteousness produces the fruit of holiness by grace through faith, empowering you to live what you couldn't before, rather than constantly seeking deliverance and waiting to feel free—God made you clean as if you never sinned, which is key to living a transformed life.

Mind Renewal and Truth

 Q: Why do many prayer requests fail to produce lasting change? A: Many prayer requests are actually truth issues, not prayer issues—people keep needing prayer because they're not changing what they believe; God can only change your life by changing your thinking, and 97% of people never acknowledge God's love for them outside of church, which prevents transformation.

Spiritual Warfare and Thought Management

 Q: How should believers handle negative thoughts instead of requesting prayer? A: Counter negative thoughts with truth, the weapon of warfare—bring every thought rising above knowledge of God into captivity, holding it obedient to Christ; you don't need prayer in these situations, you need truth, turning unwanted thoughts into a conversation with God rather than seeking deliverance.

Biblical Connection Between Forgiveness and Healing

† Q: What does James 5:15 reveal about the relationship between prayer, healing, and sin? A: James 5:15 states the prayer of faith, will save the sick, heal diseases, and forgive sins—forgiveness of sins and healing are undeniably married in the Bible, connected to mercy that triumphs over judgment and what is deserved.
