

Today was my brother's graduation ceremony. He was very nervous today so mum and dad needed a lot of time to calm him down.

First, we went to his school and listened to the speech of my brother's principal.. After the speech, my brother hugged his friends and cried a lot. Then students went up the stage to collect their graduation certificates. My brother was so nervous that he almost fell over the stage, but I was glad that he didn't fall. After that, my brother and his classmates sang their graduation song. They were all crying when they were singing the graduation song. It was so touching that it made me cry too. Then, my brother took a lot of pictures with his friends and said, 'I will keep these photos forever as it's the best day of my life!' In the end he looked at the school and said goodbye.

Today was a very touching day. I wish I could have an amazing graduation ceremony like my brother's.
