5. Pineapple Tart - Quê Handmade

Quê Handmade's pineapple tart represents a harmonious blend of modernity and tradition: modern in their minimalist and elegant packaging; traditional in their use of ancestral recipes to preserve the nostalgic flavor. In Taiwanese cuisine, pineapple cakes are also known as 'Feng li su,' meaning 'good fortune will come.' Therefore, choosing pineapple cakes as a Christmas treat carries the wish for the recipient to experience luck and prosperity.

6. Hue Lotus Rolls - Mộc Truly Huế

The lotus roll is an age-old specialty of Hue that has become less common. Handcrafted entirely by skilled artisans at Mộc Truly Huế, the cake retains the full traditional flavor. The simple and humble cake is elegantly packaged, inspired by paintings from the Sinh village in Hue, featuring scenic landscapes. Choosing the lotus seed roll as a Christmas treat not only sends a delicious specialty from Hue but also conveys a story of Vietnamese tradition and culture.

11. The Festive, 70% Dark Chocolate With Pistachios And Cranberries - SOU

The Festive chocolate is made from 70% cacao, making it a perfect gift for those who enjoy a more bitter chocolate taste. Handcrafted chocolate brings a subtle sweet and sour flavor, thanks to the natural fermentation process. This unique taste can't be found in mass-produced industrial chocolates. In addition to the characteristic chocolate flavor, the product also features a slight tartness from Vietnamese cranberries and the crispy texture of pistachios. Together, they create a layered chocolate bar with a well-balanced harmony that highlights each individual component.

12. Sugarless Dried Orange - MONSIEUR LUXE

Dehydrated oranges processed by Monsieur using modern dehydration technology retain a large portion of the naturally abundant Vitamin C, potassium, and calcium found in fresh oranges. When eaten, dehydrated oranges have a characteristic slightly sour and bitter taste. This is not only appealing in taste but also brings health and fitness benefits. In Particular, you can also use this dried candied orange as a visually stunning and delicious topping for other Christmas treats, like yule logs and cakes!
