

Someone Has To Do This
is

Not a group or a collective, but a loose and flexible network of artists and others who decide to take charge of their own social role and the ways in which they can frame, set, and take part in public discourse.

The network came together in response and in support of the first Cypriot Gay Pride in early 2014, to link and to give rise to a series of independent projects that deal with Civil and Gay Rights, each in its own way.

Also see, perhaps:

Someone Has To Say This