

Daphna Yahav - Short Bio

Daphna is Head of Projects and Processes of IES at the Weizmann Institute. She has been involved with sustainability programs at the Weizmann Institute since 2012, serving as Executive Manager of the Sustainability and Energy Research Initiative (SAERI) , first working with Prof. David Cahen and then with Prof. Ron Milo. In that capacity, she managed all aspects of SAERI, including the grants program and fellow program, as well as significant aspects of content development. She has been deeply involved in the establishment of the IES, continuing her work on supporting leading research in sustainability issues at Weizmann Institute.

Prior to her work at Weizmann Institute, Dapha worked as a lawyer at Zeller Mayer, Pelossof & Co. in Tel Aviv, specializing in corporate and commercial law, and at the law firm of Prof. Kenneth Mann & Co., focusing on criminal defense cases.

Daphna has an LLB from the Faculty of Law at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. She lives in Rehovot with her husband Roby and their three children. She enjoys hiking and the outdoors, is an avid globetrotter, and active throwball league player.