Allergen Disclaimer

At OrganicLife, we take food allergies seriously and your health and safety are always our top priority. We train our teams, review manufacturer data, and make every reasonable effort to identify and reduce risks from major allergens. Because recipes, suppliers, and manufacturing practices can change, and because cross-contact is possible in school kitchens and at manufacturers, we cannot guarantee that any item is completely free of allergens.

Nutrition and allergen data are provided for general guidance only based on information from our trusted suppliers and ingredient manufacturers. For those with severe or life-threatening allergies, we highly recommend verifying ingredient information on product labels.

Families should always consult their healthcare providers when making dietary decisions for students with allergies and are encouraged to work directly with the on-site Foodservice Director for the most current ingredient information. However, please note that allergen information provided is never a guarantee but a heartfelt effort to ensure transparency and serve you as safely as possible.
