Titled: Haga clic o pulse aquí para escribir texto., and applied for reviewing from this journal. UNDER THE OATH OF FAITH is declared that:

1. The article is ORIGINAL and UNPUBLISHED: it constitutes an original and intellectual product, written by the above-mentioned authors. The article has not been disclosed to a public third party, through any other means of digital or printed resources.
2. The article has not been proposed for simultaneous publication in advance to another printed or electronic journal, or any other type of publication.
3. The author(s) has/have not previously signed contracts with third parties regarding the transfer of patrimonial rights or the license of intellectual property rights that prevent the transfer of rights for the purpose of this journal.
4. In the case of articles written as collaborative works—no matter the stated hierarchy of contribution-, all of them have contributed intellectually to the creation of the document.
In collaborative articles (mentioned in section 4), regarding the stated hierarchy, the journal is not responsible for it.

5. In the case of collaborative articles, all the authors have read and approved the submitted manuscript.

With this understanding, the authors signing this document, we designate to (full name): Haga clic o pulse aquí para escribir texto., to be the person in charge of receiving correspondence. This person has enough authority to represent them under the condition of an authorized representative of the other authors.

6. Recognize that the Journal does not necessarily agree with the article's content.

7. Declare that all the cited data in the text and its references are properly identified.

8. Provide the permissions or authorizations of those who possess the patrimonial rights for the use of tables and figures (illustrations, photographs, drawings, maps, diagrams, or others) in the document.

9. In the case of a submitted and accepted article for publication, allows the free, exclusively, and for an indefinite time the transfer of the patrimonial rights of authorship to Universidad Nacional (Costa Rica), which implies the following:

- The graphic edition and the style of a part or the whole work.
- The full publication or reproduction of the article or part of it, both by printed or electronic means, including the internet or any other technology.
- The translation to any language or dialect of the entire article or part of it.
- The adaptation of the article to different formats of reading, sound, voice, or any other means or technical mechanism available, to make the article accessible for partially or blind people or with other kind of disabilities that affect their access to conventional formats.
- The distribution and availability of the article to the public in a way they can have access to the article anywhere and anytime, by physical or electronic available means.
- The possibility that readers can download, save, copy, and distribute for free the final approved (post-print) and published version of the article without commercial purposes, or if derived works are not generated and if the source and authorship of the article are always mentioned.
- Any other alternative of use, process, or system that is related to the editorial activities and purposes that are linked to the journal.

10. Consequently, they accept that Universidad Nacional allows the use for any kind or purpose and to publishing on the Internet or any other electronic means of the final approved (post-print) and published version of the article without commercial purposes.

11. Accept that the submitted article can be adjusted to the Journal's requirements stated in the "Instructions and Norms for Authors" available on the official website of the journal (www.revistas.una.ac.cr/ri); regarding procedures, formatting, correcting, editing, translating, publishing, the editorial process times and other requirements stated in these instructions.

12. According to Law No. 8968, concerning the protection of the person regarding the treatment of personal data, the author will provide the journal with an email address as well as personal information needed to identify the authorship of the article. Consequently, the author allows the journal to publish the article with needed personal information (name, last name, institutional affiliation, city and country, email, and ORCID number). Any other personal information provided by the authors will be protected by the journal with absolute confidentiality and may not be disclosed or transferred to third parties without the consent of the author.

13. Accept that the manuscript submission and possible publication of the article in the Journal of International Relations will be ruled by the journal editorial norms and policies, the regulations of Universidad Nacional, and the legislation of the Republic of Costa Rica. In addition, any possible future differences or disputes will be settled considering the Alternative Dispute Resolution and the Costa Rican Law.
