RILEY BOATWRIGHT ACT COMPLIANCE

Hulbert Public Schools has developed a plan for emergencies at all school events. The district has collaborated with Julie Jordan, BSN RN with Northeastern Health System on September 3, 2020.

The district has reviewed and updated the information of new EMR and personnel on August 10, 2021.

Introduction

Emergency situations may arise at any time during athletic events. Immediate action is necessary to provide the best possible care for participants. Having an established plan reduces confusion, provides for a more expedient response, and ultimately promotes the best outcomes for students and their families.

Components of a Plan

1. Emergency - What constitutes an Emergency?
2. Personnel - Who will be involved and What is their role?
3. Communication - Calling 911: Who and When?
4. Venue Specific - Where to go and How to get in.

Emergency

An emergency is the need for emergency medical services to provide evaluation and/or transportation of an athlete. It is important to provide coordination between school staff to provide the most effective response. While it is impossible to anticipate every situation which might occur, staff should always err on the side of student safety. Situations where 911 should always be called are when an athlete:

- is not breathing
- has lost consciousness
- has a suspected neck or back injury
- has an open fracture (bone through the skin)
- has severe heat exhaustion or heat stroke
- has severe bleeding that cannot be stopped
- has any condition which staff feel is a concern and beyond their ability to treat

Personnel

There are two aspects to the personnel component. The Chain of Command and the Medical Responders. While a school administrator may be in command of the situation, coaches may be the staff rendering care to the athlete. Those in the chain of command should always give due regard to the information received from those Medical Responders rendering care.

The determination of an emergency and the initial activation of this plan should always occur from someone who is with the athlete. While duties may be designated which occur away from the immediate emergency once the plan has been activated, the initial call should come from someone who is with the injured athlete.

The Chain of Command for Athletic Medical Emergencies for Hulbert Public Schools is:

- Athletic Director
- Administrator
- Head Coach
- Assistant Coach
- Other Athletes

While chain of command may differ for other aspects of the school response such as public information, this is specific to decisions made for the medical response and the medical well-being of the athlete. To avoid confusion there must be a designated individual in charge to make decisions about the care the athlete receives.

Communication

Communication is essential for a prompt response during emergencies. Staff and EMS providers must work together to provide the best emergency response capability possible for athletes.

Once the decision has been made to call for EMS a specific individual should be told to call 911. This is a cornerstone of ensuring an action takes place. The statement, “Someone call 911,” may leave room for the thought that someone else is already doing it. By the person making the decision to call 911 giving the instructions to a specific individual, this ensures the call takes place immediately.

Whenever possible the individual calling 911 should be both familiar with the venue specific emergency plan and with the patient. Having someone familiar with the venue specific plan allows for them to relay accurate access instructions to the dispatcher and having the caller with the injured athlete allows the most accurate information to be relayed to the dispatcher.

EMS dispatchers should all be trained in Emergency Medical Dispatch (EMD) protocols, in certain situations they may also be able to give the caller lifesaving instructions. Discuss these protocols with your local EMS service.

There should always be a staff member present at all events which has a copy of the emergency contact list for each student.
