#Daringcc - Daring Classrooms Collaboration
#DaringClassrooms - Dare To Lead

Thank you for making your way to this document! What started as a tweet asking for collaborators has led to the creation of this page where thoughts and ideas can turn into action that will benefit us and our students. I have listed some ideas below that can get us thinking about #daringclassrooms and our space within the educational sphere. My school year starts in September but I don't want to wait until then to get started. Feel free to add your ideas as well.

Anyone interested in collaborating with me on some of this? @BreneBrown

Teachers are some of our most important leaders. We can't always ask our students to take off the armor at home, or even on their way to ...

1) Please start by adding your contact information into the chart below.

2) Complete the Daring Leadership Assessment at https://daretolead.brenebrown.com/assessment/ - this will provide you with information about the following 4 skill sets: Rumbling with Vulnerability, Living our Values, Braving Trust, and Learning to Rise. The assessment will provide you with some insight into your strengths and next steps for growth as a daring leader. Once you have your results, feel free to share them on twitter using the hashtag #daringclassrooms and #daringcc where we can discuss. Would be great to get your perspective on what surprises you about your assessment results and what seems to fit with how you view yourself with respect to the 4 skill sets.

3) Read the book "Dare to Lead" and share your thoughts/wonders/learnings, etc and share on Twitter using #daringcc and #daringclassrooms

4) Possibility of a #daringcc twitter chat in the next two weeks.

5) Follow each other on Twitter using Twitter handles and #daringcc as a place for us to collaborate without the traffic at #daringclassrooms but try and use both tags in your tweets

6) Start taking a look at the learning lab videos at https://brenebrown.com/daringclassroom-learning-labs/ and what questions/ideas come from them - and how we can apply the messages to the work we do with students.

7) We can take a look at the integrated lesson plans that Brene Brown and her team have made available to us. Currently, those pages are down until her team puts up version 2 of those plans.
   a) Dec 2019 - Integration ideas have been provided at https://brenebrown.com/classroom-integration-ideas/.

8) What will Daring Classrooms look like in your setting? I want to take "BRAVING" and co create an anchor chart with my students and use it as the template to build trust amongst each other in our classroom. I have broken it down this way to help me when I introduce it to the class:

Build trust by being Brave.

Boundaries: respect them, ask about them.
Reliability: do what you say you will do.
Accountability: own your actions and inaction
Vault: what we talk about stays with us.
Integrity: choose what is right.
Nonjudgment: Let's not judge.
Generosity: be generous of others actions.

This is the anchor chart my Grade 3 students and I created:

Building Trust

Boundaries: we need to respect them and ask about them (check in often).

Reliability: we will do what we say we are going to do.

Accountability: we will own our actions and inactions.

Vault: what we talk about stays with us.

Integrity: we choose to do what is right.

Nonjudgment: we will not judge others — we will wonder!

Generosity: be generous of others and do it often.
