

Unique Ability: Sunlight

Lord Escanor is a duplicitous being. When the sun sets, he is a kind mannered, respectful, timid man, with perfect gentlemanly behavior. He is the weakest of the weak in this form, despite him preferring it this way most often. However, Escanor goes through a transformation like that of a fairy tale when the sun rises. When the first lights of dawn crack over the horizon, Escanor's body reacts dramatically to the presence of the glorious sun. He grows to monstrous proportions for a man, in all physical manners. Strength, speed, and durability are all pushed to the very limits of human possibilities. His parents, the King and Queen of Aine, wept over their son, believing him to have been cursed by the sun. They had been prideful rulers their whole lives, and for it, they felt the sun had punished them, and in their shame, they tried to raise him humbly. However, his curse proved too much to bear, and he was eventually cast from his home. Full of pride, anger, and the arrogance bestowed upon him by the sun, Escanor single handedly destroyed the island country many thought "Kissed by the sun." "Sunlight" imbues Escanor with rising physical capabilities the higher and higher the sun rises in the sky. The closer and closer to noon it gets, the stronger and stronger Escanor becomes. After 11am, Escanor begins to radiate intense heat, similar to as if he were the sun itself. He can manipulate this heat as he sees fit, before his power peaks at noon. After noon, his power, like the sun, decreases as the sun sets, until when it finally sets and he returns to his night time self.

TLDR; During the night, Escanor is as weak as any other fodder character, however he has a much more sociable personality. During the day, he gains +15% to all of his physical stats, and he gains access to special abilities when the sun is up.

Named Moves

Physical:

[illegible]