

In 1945 after the end of World War II an ex SA Trooper by the name Adalbert Schafer fled Germany to avoid capture from the enemy forces, taking with him his son and nephew. After 2 years of constant moving, jumping from country to country around the world he settled in America, specifically the state of Texas.

From his time in the war he abused methamphetamines and became heavily addicted which led to an unstable upbringing for the 2 children he took along with him. Many times he was sought after and owed money to a biker gang who fuelled his addiction. This went on for many years (6 years) until he tried to rob one of their members of their product and he was shot on sight. This left behind his Son and Nephew, both aged 16... However the biker gang who killed Adalbert went to his house to raid it of anything that would be of worth but instead found two malnourished and scared boys and decided that they had already made life bad enough for these two young lads and took them under their wing. The boys joined their ranks making money and learning the ropes of the criminal world, but naturally they resented the men that were responsible for the killing of their parental figure and after they amounted enough money fled from the bikers to Oklahoma.

In Oklahoma they started a new chapter in their lives however had no academic achievements at the age of 18 and had to resort to all they knew, mugging and robbing homes of innocent people. During the time they spent in Oklahoma they met many like minded criminals and formed their own MC.

After a while of being in Oklahoma in 1985 they had enough members and funds to move to New York City, a land of untold fortunes and opportunities to make a name for themselves and spread their agenda. This brings the Golden Eagle MC into the crime scene of New York City where the future is unknown....
