- Hey kids, loved the show. Very Bueno! But they all are! Thanks for all of them. I seldom have the opportunity to watch live due to work.
- Jessie and Chad had asked listeners to tell about their favorite geocaching related apps, and mine is
- onX (pronounced On x) maps.
- There are three types; hunt, offroad, and backcountry.
- These maps have all of your standard topo, satellite, and street views, and a 3D option.
- Tracking, and waypoint drops as well as property lines and land owners with some contact information that was most likely put in for geocachers to be able to get permission before placing a cache.
- Weather outlooks live forest fires and elevation are also displayed.
- You do have to pay to have access to all of the options.
- It does work in the city, so it is useful for urban cachers.
- Wild fire, road and trail closures might not be that important where you are, but it is wonderful here in Idaho.

- Thanks again for all that you do to support our community and hobby....Scott, missed you on this one, but Jessie and Chad were VERY BUENO.
