hi!! im a two-time previous member of Bolts SMP and have quite a few things to say about the management there now.

as someone who was apart of bolts for a solid month, got kicked, rejoined a day or two later, and then got kicked again the day before season 2 started, i can safely say that the management team is super duper weird and that the hierarchy of power within the server is VERY unbalanced. as an owner (and yes i will be name-dropping, do not attack anyone tho since i like them outside of all this shit), i believe that ReallyOliver is one of the worst admins on any smp i've ever been apart of specifically when it comes to letting members know what is going on behind the scenes.

when i was apart of Bolts, there was damn near zero transparency to anyone that was getting kicked over the fact that they were going to get kicked. there was no warning saying "hey you gotta make content or we're gonna kick you" or nothing, it was literally just one night you're in the server and the next you're not. they give you a short little copy-paste dm saying that you were kicked and dont give you a proper reason as to why whatsoever for you to either address or acknowledge.

when i was kicked the second time from bolts, i was extremely upset due to the fact it was literally not even 24 hours before season 2 was set to start. i had almost 4 videos lined up and ready to start production, and had i never been kicked from bolts, all 4 of those video concepts i had would be on my channel already. i had hella motivation, i loved where i was, i was on good terms with everyone on the server. and i got that stripped from me due to the admin team deciding i was no longer a good fit, i guess? my best guess is that i got kicked for toxicity during the bolts vs viewers server; but even then, that could have been handled privately instead of me getting straight up kicked due to the fact i am still actively tryna improve as a person and have a literal therapist guiding me down that path.

the biggest ick i had with getting kicked was the fact that i did not dislike ANY of the server members in any way. sure, we had arguments and got mad at each other, but that's how banter works. sure, i hackusated bikoo at one point, but i calmed down and chilled afterwards even though his (quite frankly immature asf) group of friends were still clowning me for it. that doesnt mean i hate bikoo or the people i argued with, it was just a hiccup that could have been immediately remedied instead of having me be immediately terminated as a player. i had no strikes, no bad blood, and i had content lined up and ready PLUS i uploaded on season 1 and was the only person to do so for that specific arc of the server. and i was just randomly removed out of nowhere on a random ass day 😭 basically what im tryna say is that Oliver as an owner sucks and that the admin team is not transparent enough at all on Bolts SMP. i think that katpocalypse being an owner is the best decision that has ever been made on the staff team in the server, but somehow them being on that team isnt enough and i love that dude dearly 😭

overall i needa see some more transparency when it comes to kick waves and generally telling people when someone has a problem, from both the staff team AND members.

bolts smp members, because i KNOW your asses follow me: if you have a problem with someone, stop being pussies and solve it mutually. if someone has wronged you, tell them that they did, and they will 99/100 times apologize and try to remedy the situation with true sincerity. literally all yall have to do is talk to one another bro its NOT that hard tldr for the bums in the chat: oliver is a huge bum as an admin for bolts smp and there needs to be more transparency from the PR at bolts smp. members needa talk to one another about issues instead of going straight to the admins to get them fully removed from a server they truly cared about :D