I am originally from Houston, Texas, and (minus a couple of years) have been living in Colorado since 2011. I am grateful to have been a life long student having attended Colorado College for my undergraduate studying psychology and education, Claremont Graduate University for my first master's degree studying motivation and well being, and University of Colorado Denver for my second master's degree studying curriculum and instruction. I have been teaching ELA in Colorado since 2018 having spent two years at KIPP Sunshine Peak Academy and have been at McAuliffe since 2020. I love to volunteer. Since moving back to Colorado, I have been volunteering with Paradox Sports, which is an organization that takes differently abled people rock climbing. I also volunteer with Children's Hospital Colorado Burn Camps Program, a summer camp for people who have survived burn injuries. In my free time I like to go rock climbing, play soccer, run, read, drink coffee, and eat pizza.
