Backstory: When he was human, he had a wife and 4 y/o daughter. While he loved them more than anything, his wife was unfortunately abusive towards both him and their child. He could never bring himself to defend himself against his wife, however he always protected his daughter. Him and his daughter had a strong bond, and he would often find new ways to style her hair. One day he had to go into the village to buy some supplies, and needing both hands, regretfully left his daughter behind while his wife was sleeping. When he returned, his child was dead, murdered by his wife. In a fit of shock and anger, he killed his wife. Leaving her body behind, he shakily took his daughter and a shovel, and went to dig a grave. Unbeknownst to him, he was being watched by Uppermoon 6, known by Gyutaro, the entire time. Not so soon after he buried his daughter, the grief-filled man was attacked, mouth flooded with a foul-tasting iron. When he came to, his teeth ached and he was hungry. As he wandered down a path he came upon a house. Seen through the windows was a man beating his wife. He blacked out, and when he came to the man was already dead, arm ripped off and being consumed. Urami was born.

Current Location: Butterfly Mansion

Likes: any type of shrimp, ramen, mochi, mornings, the Spring

Backstory: When he was 10, Yasushi's parents died from an unknown disease, leaving him and his two younger sisters in the care of their grandparents. As the eldest, and more able to do activities, Yasushi took on the responsibility of caring for his siblings and eventually his grandparents as they grew older; he did this for three years. One day, a demon attacked, killing everyone except for Yasushi and his grandma, although they were severely wounded; this is where Yasushi's face scar comes from. As the grandma gradually became worse, she handed Yasushi the gold pieces of jewelry he wears present-day. They're family heirlooms passed down to the women of the family, but seeing how his sisters are dead, Yasushi inherited them instead. Not a week after the attack the grandma too died, leaving Yasushi alone. After he recovered enough to be fit for travel, Yasushi hightailed it out of the village and into an unknown direction, feeling helpless for not being able to protect his family. As he walked, he was almost attacked again by a demon when a Wind Breather saved him. The Wind Breather brought Yasushi to their master, who would go on to teach Yasushi. After two years, he completed his training and passed the Final Selection when he was 15. Half a year into his career of slaying demons, a girl by the name Toshiko Horiuchi intercepted him on his way back from a mission in order to help her friend, Akimitsu Koyanagi fight ex-lowermoon Suzume.

INCORRECT QUOTES

Yasushi, to the squad: And remember, if I get harsh with you it is only because you're doing it all wrong.

Yasushi: I keep a picture of all of us in my pocket. Whenever I face difficulties, I take it out and stare at the picture.

The Squad: Awwww-

Yasushi: And I tell myself "If I can deal with these idiots, then I can deal with anything."

The Squad: Oh.

Yasushi: Plants are basically the ideal friends. They are quiet, friendly, and easy to please. All they need is a little water and fresh earth, and they are perfectly happy to lie there all day in the sun. And they don't make increasingly awful life choices, or hide their relationships. They have never, as far as I know, fucked a bee. The 'bee' in this situation is a lower moon.

Yasushi: My parents died when I was little so whenever someone jokes about fucking my mom I'll pretend to be really sincere and say some shit like "Glad to see they're still together after death" and then watch them absolutely fumble trying to figure out a response to that statement.

Yasushi: Update, my sisters and I now live with our grandparents. I can no longer make the joke.

Yasushi: Update update, my sisters and grandparents died and all that's left is the family heirloom and this scar.

Yasushi: I'm genuinely surprised you haven't gotten arrested, let alone gotten a felony yet.

Akimitsu: Nat 20 Charisma.

Yasushi: That is NOT how that works-

Akimitsu: We need a diversion. I say Toshiko gets naked.

Yasushi: No.

Akimitsu: I could get naked.

Yasushi: NO!!!

Yasushi: What did Akimitsu do this time?

Toshiko: More like WHO did Akimitsu do this time?

Akimitsu: Is letting someone win at shogi sapiosexual bottoming?

Yasushi: Can everyone in this godforsaken group please learn the skill called "Think Before You Speak"?

Toshiko: Ya know... it might be.

Toshiko: I'm gonna eat the chicken breasts!

Akimitsu, snickering: Yeah, eat what you lack.

Yasushi, deadpanning at Akimitsu: Then maybe I should order brains on delivery for you.

Toshiko: There are three ways to handle a difficult situation. The right way, the wrong way, and the Akimitsu way.

Yasushi: Isn't that the wrong way?

Toshiko: Yes, but it's faster.

Yasushi: The salary of a clown is 8,197,995.0000 yen.

Yasushi, gesturing to Toshiko and Akimitsu fighting: And yet these idiots do it daily, and for free!

Akimitsu: Which way did Yasushi go?

Toshiko: Well, based on the direction of the wind, the broken sticks in the corner, and the slight disturbance in the dirt, I'd guess they went left.

Akimitsu: You could really figure it out from that?

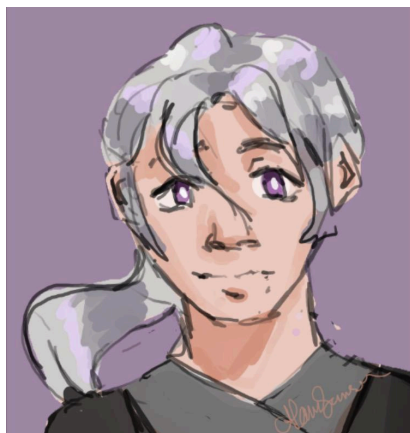

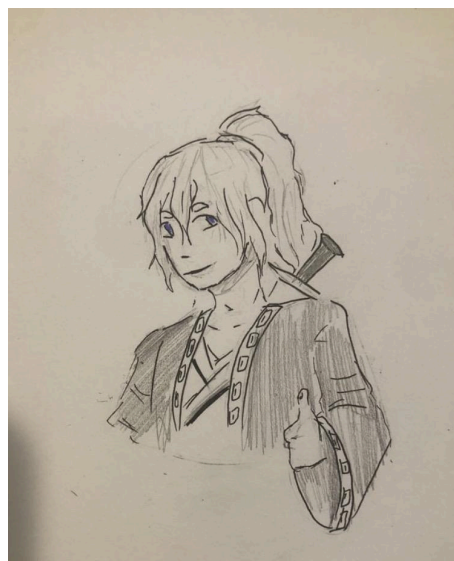

Toshiko: No, you idiot, Yasushi sent me their crow. See? Points at the ugliest fucking bird.

Rank: Kinoto

Backstory: Hakuma was born in a village that was already aware of demons. He was given the same care as any normal child until his teeth grew in, when it was revealed that he had natural fangs. Ever since, he was treated like a curse, something that shouldn't exist. He became a very angry person, but most of it was directed at himself. When he turned 12, he ran away in the middle of the night, unable to bear the villagers' actions any longer. After a few days he came across an older woman, who just so happened to be a retired Demon Slayer. Seeing his anger, she offered to teach Hakuma in the ways of Wind Breathing. He agreed after some deliberation, and with time he managed to release his anger into the wind, improving the power of his attacks and his own personality which was slowly cooling down. By the time of his Final Selection, he was a much happier, calmer person. When he returned to the woman who had been training him for the last year, she gave him her earrings as a token of his survival.

- His Nichirin sword color is green
- His Kasugai Crow insists on just being called "Crow," for they think their original name is embarrassing

- Actually has quite the temper, but stamps it down until he can work it out with Wind Breathing
- Still writes to the woman that trained him
- Still self conscious about his teeth, but he has friends that help him
  - when he first joined, some slayers would think he was a demon and become aggressive with him; the behavior died down after a few months, but he still gets the occasional glare or jab
  - he started smiling with a closed mouth after noticing some wary glances
    - ➔ this also made him switch from laughing out loud to just chuckling
- Hasn't personally encountered any Hashira yet besides Shinobu, and after hearing about the whole Nezuko debacle he's even more wary
- His favorite treat is dorayaki
