

I do get descriptive here and this is why - in years of my writing experience, whenever it would get to the point of writing smut, 7 out of 10 partners would just get to... I can't make a more flowery term other than just straight up fucking. Nothing else. Like literally nothing else. Foreplay? If I'm lucky. Teasing? Pfff, I wish. I don't know, I don't write smut for gratification of any kind. To me it's just like writing hardcore violence. It's cathartic and fun. To me, the whole point of writing is to push boundaries that you can't really do in real life. So the reason why I get descriptive is to just show that I know what I'm doing, perhaps inspire a potential partner when it comes to this aspect of writing or, I don't know, scare away people who don't know any better, because god I'm so over it.

THANK YOU FOR COMING TO MY TED TALK, ANYWAY LET'S GET TO THE POINT.

Honestly, I like writing a lot of things, it's just about the way it is delivered. I adore a great slowburn, with a lot of intense teasing and deprivation to the point of begging. So basically a lot of foreplay and even sexual sessions with characters that result without a happy ending (aka they don't fuck, they just tease each other to near point insanity or finish each other off by hand.) Just a lot of sensuality and tension really gets me off. But then again, there are appropriate scenarios for some extremely primal rutting, just absolutely messy and filthy, the kind one can only dream about. And oh yeah, I like messy a lot. Blood, sweat, saliva, feminine secrete of arousal (maybe even menstrual blood if you're that kinky, I will let you indulge,) precum and of course cum. Also, sexual scenes in risky places and situations where they are under threat of being caught, especially in case this is about a forbidden romance.

And lastly, I play switch characters often, however, I do not enjoy writing dommes often. I prefer partners who are dominants, or at least switches who lean towards the dominant role.

Here's a more narrowed down list of, like, everything. Shield your eyes, christians:

- Vanilla and fluffy romantic stuff - aftercare, love making, sensual stuff, and all that. All when it's conveniently built up to the point.
- Rough and primal sex - just mindless rutting that is dirty to the core. All when it's conveniently built up to the point.
- Switch leaning towards submissive - this has been elaborated, I prefer partners who are either fully dominant or play a switch who leans towards dominant
- Sadism and masochism - I will play in both of these categories. The limits will vary and should be discussed (it's different when you play with humans and when you play with vampires, who take pain much better)
- Dry crotch humping and rubbing
- Order MC what to do
- I will play both an obedient submissive and an uppity brat, you choose
- Fingers in mouth
- Depravity and desperation
- Clothes malfunction and risky sex - all happening in places and stations it shouldn't be happening.
- Fingering and rubbing
- Dirty talking
- Healthy dose of degradation and humiliation

- Orgasms achieved without penetration
- Oral pleasuring - both giving and receiving
- Watch MC masturbate - in secret, given as an order or just YC watching her without her knowing
- Dual masturbation - our characters doing it together as a form of teasing or foreplay
- Bloodplay, blood drinking (a lot of vampire stuff) and many other things involving blood
- Sex as a form of dark occult ritual
- Biting, scratching, hair pulling, choking and tongue play
- Mirrors and looking at the reflection as the characters are getting into it
- MxFxM - I'd be willing to do a FxMxF only if I get the other one in turn
- BDSM - ESPECIALLY bondage, I'm into medium intensity of the BDSM practices
- Aphrodisiac - be it something they eat or drink or maybe some different, unnatural effects

As for the limits, I'd say the only thing that would bother me is to have a character of mine to be sexually brutalized and raped. I do not enjoy non-con content whatsoever. However, violence, abuse, heavy profanity, drugs and other very heavy subjects some people might find a bit sensitive does not apply for me. Those themes are okay with me and relevant for dark storytelling. On the topic of rape, I don't mind it being mentioned "off-screen" but anything written in detail will make me want to end whatever partnership we've built.

When it comes to my limits with kinks and fetishes, it's mostly just the classic gross stuff such as scat, vomit, piss, shit and things like that. As for anything else, especially if it's a very specific kind of a kink, you'll have to ask me directly. Out of 100% kinks I've done in writing, I've only rejected 10% of them.