6.	3.10pm (10 minute)	Community Resilience Partnership update Context: This item presents an update on the most recent Community Resilience Partnership meeting which took place on Thursday 16 September. This meeting focused on poverty from the systems thinking approach, which recognises that poverty reduction and building resilience will require us to think and lead as a system- not from a service or individual perspective, to view the needs of individuals and families holistically and work collaboratively to achieve change. We heard directly from two young residents about their journeys and the encounters that have made them both easier and more difficult. Hearing these stories was an opportunity to self-reflect and think creatively about: • The relationships needed across the system to address the complex multiple challenges that residents face • The opportunities to build better relationships and how this could make a difference for individuals and families • The barriers to working more collaboratively and how we can overcome them key points: • focus of this meeting was on poverty • had young people in the meeting tell their stories about growing up in Hackney, was quite a powerful way to introduce the idea that poverty is a very wide ranging issue and encompasses everything that impacts upon an individual • had a lot more voluntary sector input • one of the things young people talked about was stability which is a reminder of the importance of a stable work force and also the importance of schools as a protective factor	Cllr Fajana-Thomas
