

Use Google Maps to Create a GLOBAL READING LOG

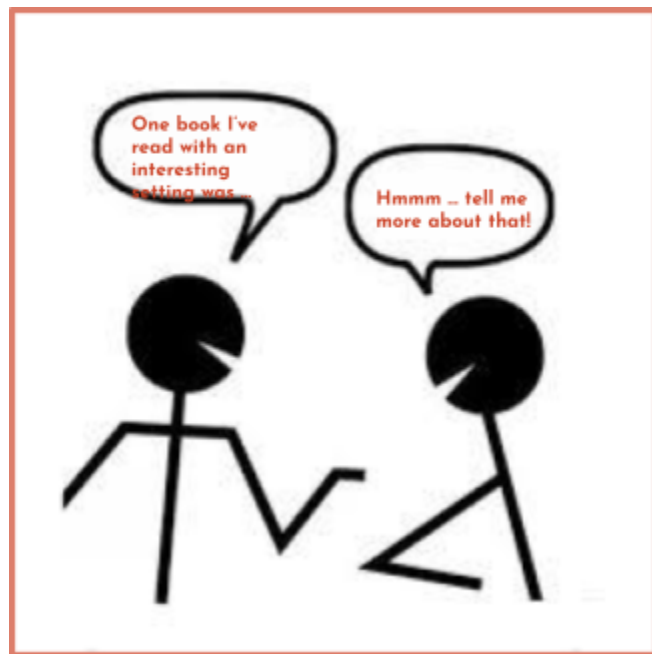

WHY IT MATTERS

Readers monitor their "international travels" through reading logs.

Explore this ThingLink

to see why global literacy matters!

Talk with a partner about a book you've read that had an interesting setting -- and what did you learn about the world from that book?

LEARN IT

1. Click HERE to view the sample map
2. Tutorials: How-to Video & Screen shots

TRY IT TOGETHER

This is optional -- depends on teacher!*

1. Create a map as a class (see directions above)
2. Drop a pin and text/images together
(to practice)

TRY IT ON YOUR OWN

1. Create your OWN map! (don't forget to "share" it when you're done)
2. Continue to add to your map as you read more and more. Drop pins as you read.

directions above in "Learn It" section*

REFLECT ON IT

1. Add a link to your map on this Padlet.
2. Travel with your classmates -- check out some of the places they are reading about on their global reading logs.

Wanna Keep Travelin'??

Click HERE to visit Wonderopolis.

Using the Search Tool, type in a place you're curious about, and let the traveling and wondering begin!