

Tillamook County Democratic Party
Short Read of the Week
Article List for 2021-12-02

Only four articles on the list for tomorrow (so far), but lots of other links are flying around in email, so we might wind up talking about others when we gather tomorrow morning at 7:30 in the Kennedy Room and choose one or two that will get our Read of the Week spotlight. If you are interested in how we talk to our friends and neighbors about events and ideas, this weekly meeting (open to all Democrats) is where you need to be. Will you join us?

What 'my body, my choice' means to the right	2021-11-29	Michelle Goldberg	Opinion Why Conservatives Adopted a Pro-Choice Slogan	What 'my body, my choice' means to the right	810	"I thought this might be a good short read topic."
What Happens to Democracy When Local Journalism Dries Up?	2021-11-30	Margaret Sullivan	Perspective What happens to society — and our democracy — when community and regional journalism dries up	What Happens to Democracy When Local Journalism Dries Up?	2358	"Obviously this strikes close to home."
Acting locally, thinking globally: Young farmers updates from COP26	2021-11-03	Vanessa Garcia Polanco	Acting Locally. Thinking Globally: Young Farmers Updates from COP26	Acting Locally. Thinking Globally: Young Farmers Updates from COP26	695	Although the COP26 just ended, a local Tillamook County organization's national representative attended and touted their hope for the Biden-Harris administration's work on climate change. The Young Farmers Coalition has three chapters in the PNW, with one in Nehalem. (The other two PNW chapters are in Eugene and Olympia.) It is encouraging to see local young farmers take a strong stand on the climate crisis.
