Title: Bully

This book mainly tells the brave story of school bullying. Melissa and Jenn were good friends at first, but from a certain day, Jenn ignored her and took the lead in bullying her. Melissa didn't know the reason, so she kept silently enduring it until one day, Allison, who was regarded as an invisible person by her classmates, came to chat with her and have lunch, and they became good friends. Later, Allison told Melissa some truth with her good drawing skills, it said "You must be strong and brave to face those who bully you, instead of accepting them." After that, at a dance party, Jenn made a gesture to Melissa, and wanted to be friends with her again, Melissa felt very overwhelmed, finally, Melissa said "No! I'm not afraid of you anymore!" She bravely rejected Jenn's hypocritical dialogue and became stronger at the end.

My favorite paragraph is page 10. Which is about a painting Allison sent to Melissa, the messages in painting wanted to convey is "The sun is setting in a burst of bright colors, and at the top of the page the stars are coming out. I look joyful, powerful, free." Why do I like this part so much? First of all, I was very moved by Allison's careful observation and encouragement to Melissa, her encouragement gave Melissa a lot of courage. Second, I think this painting is a turning point, Melissa is no longer afraid of the bullying of her classmates, and she had to face it bravely and take the initiative to say "No!" I think what the author wanted to convey is "You can't control whether others will bully you, but you can choose to face it or avoid it."

After reading this story, I think "school bullying is the most shameful thing, and what the bully does may cast a shadow on the victim for a lifetime." But from this story, I also learned "even if I encounter bullying, I must fight hard, cultivate a strong heart, and formulate a coping strategy for any bullying that I may encounter, and face and resist bravely." I think Melissa is really brave. After being humiliated by so many classmates, because of Allison's encouragement, she took the initiative to fight back against the bullies. Instead of being a cowardly victim, she learned to express her actively. Therefore, when we encounter difficulties and setbacks in our lives, we should bravely face and solve them, rather than escape from them, Finally, I hope that everyone will not experience bullying and treat everyone with a kind heart, make this world a better place.
